ACJS Announced 2002 Awards at March Meeting in Anaheim

The Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences (ACJS) held its annual meeting March 5-9, in Anaheim, California. The meeting focused on the theme "Justice Problems, Social Change and Accountability: Raising Social Consciousness and Taking Responsibility." Held each year in a different city, the annual conference brings together scholars and justice system professionals for the presentation of research, workshops and featured speakers. Officers on the executive board for 2001-2002 include: Richard R. Bennett (American University), president; Steven P. Lab (Bowling Green State University), first vice president; Jim Finkenauer (National Institute of Justice), second vice president; Mary K. Stohr (Boise State University), treasurer; and Brandon Applegate (University of Central Florida), secretary. David L. Carter (Michigan State University), Richard N. Holden (Central Missouri State University) and Joycelyn Pollock (Southwest Texas State University) are trustees-at-large. Regional trustees include Roslyn Muraskin (C.W. Post Campus, Long Island University), Ronald Hunter (State University of West Georgia); Lee Ross (University of Wisconsin, Parkside) and Barbara Lane Hart (University of Texas, Tyler). Mittie D. Southerland (Murray State University) is the immediate past president.

Francis T. Cullen (University of Cincinnati) received the Academy Founder's Award for outstanding contributions to criminal justice education and ACJS. Jay S. Albanese (Virginia Commonwealth University) was named Academy Fellow for distinguished teaching and scholarly achievement. Gerhard O.W. Mueller (Rutgers University) received the Bruce Smith Sr. Award for demonstration of leadership in the administration of criminal justice and substantial contributions to the emerging body of knowledge in criminal justice. The Outstanding Book Award went to Mark Colvin (George Mason University) for Crime and Coercion: An Integrated Theory of Chronic Criminality.

ACJS has a large number of active members who continue to meet the organization's objectives of advancing the knowledge base in the fields of criminal justice education, research and policy analysis. As change expands the existing boundaries of the criminal justice field, the Academy's membership base is becoming increasingly diversified. The 2003 annual meeting will be held at the Marriott Copley Place in Boston, Massachusetts, on March 5-9. It will focus on the theme "The Globalization of Justice." For further details on the conference, see the "Call for Papers" on page 6 of this issue.

For more information on the Academy, contact: Laura Monaco, Association Manager, ACJS, 7319 Hanover Parkway, Suite C, Greenbelt, MD 20770. Phone: 800/757-ACJS or 301/446-6300. Fax: 301/446-2819. Web site: <http://www.acjs.org>

ASC Will Hold 2002 Conference in the Windy City

The American Society of Criminology (ASC) will hold its 2002 Annual Meeting November 13-16, 2002, at the Palmer House Hilton Hotel in Chicago, Illinois. The theme of the meeting will be "Re-Inventing Justice: Theories, Innovation and Research."

ASC is an international organization whose objective is to bring together a multidisciplinary forum fostering criminology study, research and education. Members include practitioners, academicians and students in the many fields of criminal justice. For further information on ASC or participating in the conference, contact: Sarah Hall, Administrator, ASC, 1314 Kinnear Road, Suite 212, Columbus, OH 43212. Phone: 614/292-9207. ACJS is Seeking Applications and Nominations for Editor of ACJS Today

The Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences (ACJS) is seeking applications for the position of Editor of ACJS Today. The editor of the newsletter will be responsible for producing a high-quality professional newsletter for the membership of the Academy. The editor will set editorial policy, solicit materials, consider unsolicited submissions for publication, develop features of interest to the membership and manage the newsletter. The editor is appointed for a three-year term, subject to Executive Board review. ACJS Today is published quarterly. The new editor's first issue will be May/June 2003.

Applicants must meet the following qualifications:

- (1) a demonstrated record of scholarly activity (e.g., publications in refereed journals, books and research);
- (2) an earned Ph.D. or terminal degree in area of specialization;
- (3) senior academic rank (associate professor or above) at host institution;
- (4) ACJS membership; and
- (5) formal declaration of support from host institution, including faculty release time and other supportive services and materials that the institution will commit. Editorial experience is preferred but not required.

Candidates should provide the following information to the Editor Selection Committee no later than December 1, 2002: applicant's vita, statement of editorial philosophy and intentions for ACJS Today, and a formal declaration of support from host institution. Send applications and information requests to: Brandon K. Applegate, University of Central Florida, Department of Criminal Justice and Legal Studies, P.O. Box 161600, Orlando, FL 32816-1600. Phone: 407/823-3739. Fax: 407/823-5360. E-mail: bapplega@mail.ucf.edu

JSA Establishes Noam Chomsky Award

The Justice Studies Association (JSA) has elected to bestow an annual award to be presented at their yearly meeting. The award is called The Noam Chomsky Award in honor of Noam Chomsky, Professor of Linguistics and Philosophy at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The award will recognize an individual or group who exhibits three qualities that have characterized Chomsky's life. The person should be a source of inspiration through his or her commitment to scholarly/intellectual activities related to justice, should be personally active in the promotion of peace and justice, and should live a life of relative simplicity.

The first (2001) recipients of the Noam Chomsky Award were the editors of Z Magazine: Lydia Sargent, Eric Sargent and Michael Albert. These editors present a monthly forum for progressive social thought and commentary around the globe.

In addition to founding Z Magazine, Sargent and Sargent are also co-founders of South End Press. They have also established the Z Media Institute, a summer school held each June that prepares participants to start and run a media project. Eric Sargent also does book fulfillment work on contract for South End Press.

Consistent with the tenor of the award, the recipients did not receive a plaque or trophy, but instead were given a piece of hand-crafted pottery, a large salad bowl that Albany potter, Amy Lindstrom, prepared in her home studio. The only visible recognition of the award is some scratched-in work on the bottom of the bowl.

For further information about the Noam Chomsky Award or membership in JSA, contact JSA President, A. Javier Trevino, Sociology Department, Wheaton College, Norton, MA 02766. Phone: 508/286-3656. Fax: 508/286-3640. E-mail: trevino@wheatonma.edu, or President-Elect Beverly Quist, Criminal Justice, Mohawk Valley Community College, 1101 Sherman Drive; Utica, NY 13501. Phone: 315/792-5653. E-mail: bquist@mvc.edu. Also see the JSA web site at <http://www.justicestudies.org>

Web Site to Explore

CRIMETHEORY.COM

<http://www.crimetheory.com/>

Crimetheory.com is an educational resource on theoretical criminology. The site is divided into three sections on the topics of Learning, Researching and Teaching.

The Learning section includes resources for scholars, including exercises and essays exploring criminology, a gallery of criminologists, a glossary of criminological terms and a forum in which users can seek information from one another about a particular theorist or theory.

The Researching section contains resources for criminologists, including information on upcoming conferences, a bibliography of texts and journals organized by theory and topic, a growing full-text archive of influential criminological texts and documents, information on the World Prison Project, a bibliography of readings on the topic of law and society as well as links to data sets, resource centers and other criminology-related sites.

The web site's experimental Teaching pages seek to provide a space for the collection and exchange of course syllabi and other educational materials among teachers of criminology and socio-legal studies. An interface for the easy uploading and searching of stored materials is under development. In the meantime, criminologists are invited to send information in the form of e-mail attachments to theory@indiana.edu and/or to participate in the teaching forum. The site is designed and maintained by Bruce Hoffman (University of Washington).

Program Development

Florida Atlantic University

The Master's Program in Justice Policy and Management at Florida Atlantic University has announced a new 12-credit graduate certificate in Restorative and Community Justice. Offered both in traditional classroom settings and via computer-assisted instruction, coursework will include: Restorative and Community Justice, Victims and the Justice Process, Issues in Community Justice, and Conflict Management and Dispute Resolution. The program was developed primarily by Gordon Bazemore, Mara Schiff and Sandra O'Brien.

For more information on the program, contact Jeanne B. Stinchcomb, Coordinator, Master of Justice Policy and Management Program, Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice, Florida Atlantic University, 111 East Las Olas Boulevard, Ft. Lauderdale, FL 33301. Phone: 954/762-5138. E-mail: stincho@fau.edu

University of Cincinnati

The University of Cincinnati is now offering a third area of study for doctoral students in the Division of Criminal Justice. A Crime Prevention concentration has been added to the program in addition to the Policing and Corrections concentrations that have been existence up to this year. Under the new area of concentration, four classes will be required: Crime Prevention Theory, Applied Crime Prevention, Victimology and White-Collar Crime. The doctoral program prepares students to pursue research positions in either the criminal justice industry or in academe.

For further information on UC's masters and doctoral programs in criminal justice, contact: James Frank, Graduate Director, Division of Criminal Justice, University of Cincinnati, P.O. Box 210389, Cincinnati, OH 45221-0389. Phone: 513/556-5827. E-mail: james.frank@uc.edu

University of South Carolina

The University of South Carolina has established an interdisciplinary program of graduate studies in Drugs and Addictions. The program, administratively housed in the Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice, has a dual mission of producing and disseminating scientific knowledge in the area of substance abuse and drug control policy as well as providing substance abuse training education. J. Mitch Miller has been appointed as the program's director.

The Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice offers a B.S. and an M.C.J., with courses focusing on law enforcement, corrections, the judiciary, planning and research. For information on the new program or the department, contact Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice, University of South Carolina, Columbia, South Carolina 29208. Phone: 803/777-7097. American Criminal Justice Association Plans Meeting for March

The 66th National Conference of the American Criminal Justice Association—Lambda Alpha Epsilon (ACJA) will be held March 16 - 21, 2003, at the Wyndham Orlando Resort in Orlando, Florida. The theme of the conference will be "Privatizing Justice: Meeting the Challenge."

Each year ACJA holds a week-long conference comprised of workshops; seminars; and written, practical and physical competitive events. There are five written competitions on: Criminal Law, Police Management and Operation, Juvenile Justice, Corrections and an LAE Knowledge exam. In addition, there are competitions on crime scene investigation, firearms use and physical agility. There will be a closing banquet at which trophies will be awarded to the winners of the competitions taking place throughout the week.

Membership in ACJA is composed of persons who are employed in an area concerned with the administration of criminal justice, persons honorably retired from a career in an area concerned with the administration of criminal justice, those enrolled in a program of study in the criminal justice field at a college or university accredited by a recognized national or regional accreditation association, and some persons involved in volunteer work directly related to the administration of criminal justice.

For further information on the association, contact: American Criminal Justice Association—Lambda Alpha Epsilon, P.O. Box 601047, Sacramento, CA 95860-1047. Phone: 916/484-6553. Fax: 916/488-2227. E-mail: acjalae@aol.com

Journal of Police Crisis Negotiations Announces Charter Issue

A new Journal of Police Crisis Negotiations will be edited by James L. Greenstone, police psychologist and Director of the Psychological Services Unit at the Fort Worth Police Department. Greenstone supervises the department's Peer Support Team and is the coordinator of the Critical Incident Stress Management Program.

The Journal of Police Crisis Negotiations will give criminal justice professionals information and techniques about critical emergency situations, such as hostage-taking, crisis intervention, terrorism, attempted suicide, domestic disputes and barricaded subjects. It is the only journal exclusively devoted to educating readers about the best possible methods for diffusing crises and performing successful interventions. The peer-reviewed journal will also feature columns on negotiator well-being, suicidology, specialized techniques, training issues, negotiator equipment and book reviews. The Journal of Crisis Negotiations and The International Journal of Police Negotiations and Crisis Management, also edited by Greenstone, were the predecessors of the current publication.

Prospective contributors are invited to request a brochure with instructions for authors from: James L. Greenstone, 222 West Fourth Street, Suite 212, Fort Worth, TX 76102. Phone: 817/882-9415. Fax: 817/870-4819. E-mail: dlrg@flash.net. A free sample of the charter issue is available at no charge. Requests should be sent to: Journal of Police Crisis Negotiations, The Haworth Press, Inc., Sample Copy Department-Box Comp, 10 Alice Street, Binghamton, NY 13904-1580. Focus on Faculty

Jay Albanese (Virginia Commonwealth University) has accepted the position of Director of the International Center at the National Institute of Justice.

Gary Cordner, coauthor of Anderson titles, Police Administration, 4th ed., Police Operations: Analysis and Evaluation and What Works in Policing? Operations and Administration Examined, is stepping down as Dean of the College of Justice and Safety at Eastern Kentucky University to rejoin the teaching faculty.

Walter S. DeKeseredy (Ohio University), author of Women, Crime and the Canadian Criminal Justice System (Anderson, 2000), has received a grant from the National Institute of Justice to conduct an exploratory study of sexual assault during and after separation/divorce.

Irene Jung Fiala has left the faculty of Kent State University, Ashtabula, to join the Department of Sociology at Edinboro University of Pennsylvania.

Komi Swaroop Kumar has been awarded the Chancellor's Award for Excellence in Teaching for 2001-2002 by the State University of New York at Potsdam in recognition of exemplary teaching and significant contribution to institutional quality in instruction.

Mark Marsolais, a recent retiree from the Houston Police Department, has joined the faculty of Northern Kentucky University. He holds a doctorate from Sam Houston State University.

Michael O. Maume has joined the faculty of the University of North Carolina at Wilmington as an assistant professor of criminal justice. He was formerly affiliated with Ohio University.

J. Mitchell Miller has been awarded tenure and promoted to Associate Professor in the newly formed Department of Criminology and Criminal Justice at the University of South Carolina.

Daniel F. Ponstingle has retired as Chair of the Criminal Justice Department at Lorain County Community College after 20 years in that position.

Robin Shepard-Engel has joined the faculty of the Division of Criminal Justice at the University of Cincinnati. She was formerly affiliated with Pennsylvania State University.

In Memoriam

CLIFFORD W. VAN METER

Cliff Van Meter passed away May 23, 2002, after a long battle with illness. Van Meter joined the faculty of Grand Valley State University (GVSU) in 1992 after retiring from the University of Illinois. Cliff was a favorite among students and was a mentor to many junior faculty. He completed a fourth edition of Principles of Security and Crime Prevention (with Pamela A. Collins and Truett A. Ricks) while serving as an advisor to West Michigan law enforcement and security organizations. He continued links with law enforcement agencies in the United Kingdom and arranged for faculty and student exchanges.

In the words of Jonathan R. White, Executive Director, Homeland Defense Initiative, Grand Valley State University:

"In 1999, Cliff contracted a lung disease. At the time, we all thought he would beat it, but it proved fatal. He taught, laughed and took care of people literally to the last day of his life. He watched a ship going out on Lake Michigan with his wife Judy on May 23 and told her it was one of the most beautiful things he had ever seen. He then told her to call the hospital and a few hours later he died. Cliff Van Meter was a credit to the teaching profession. He loved his discipline, his colleagues and his students. I was his dean in the last few months of his life, but more importantly, I was his golf partner and friend. Cliff is one of my heroes."

Memorials may be made to the Pulmonary Fibrosis Foundation, 1075 Santa Fe Drive, Denver, CO 80204.

New Journal on Youth Violence and Juvenile Justice to Debut in 2003

Youth Violence and Juvenile Justice: An Interdisciplinary Journal will provide academicians and practitioners in juvenile justice and related fields with a resource for publishing current empirical research, discussing theoretical issues and reviewing promising interventions and programs in the areas of youth violence, juvenile justice and school safety. The journal encourages the publication of program evaluations, policy analyses, empirical research and practical, theoretical, legal and qualitative analyses.

The journal will be interdisciplinary in scope, serving a diverse audience in the fields of criminal justice, education, psychology, social work, behavior analysis, sociology, law, counseling, public health and all others with an interest in youth violence, juvenile justice and school safety.

Editors Tory J. Caeti and Eric J. Fritsch of the University of North Texas, Denton, seek manuscript submissions. See the "Call for Papers" on page 6 for details.

ACA Directory Updates Correctional Facility Personnel Changes

The American Correctional Association has published the 2002 Directory of Adult and Juvenile Correctional Departments, Institutions, Agencies and Probation and Paroling Authorities. The 2002 Directory provides information on U.S. and Canadian provincial, state and federal correctional systems. It includes names, addresses and telephone/fax numbers for wardens and administrators at more than 6,000 adult and juvenile state correctional departments, institutions, programs and probation and parole/aftercare services. This edition includes the U.S. Marshals Service, the Immigration and Naturalization Service and Indian Country jails. Statistical summaries have been compiled for capital expenditures and operating budgets populations, programs and personnel. To order a copy, contact ACA's customer service department at 800/222-5646, ext. 1860.

SPICING UP THE CLASSROOM ENVIRONMENT SOME IDEAS

The History of American Corrections

(2001) is a 40-minute video covering the events that have shaped the field of corrections. Providing viewers with an overview of the development of corrections, the video is divided into ten eras, including: Corporal Punishment; Penitentiary; Eastern/Auburn; Reformatory; Industrial; Early Progressive; Medical Model; Community; War on Drugs; and Just Deserts. To order copies, contact ACA's customer service department at 800/222-5646, ext 1860. Callers from outside the United States should call 301/918-1860. The video is available to both members and nonmembers for $125 plus $15.50 for shipping and handling.

Crime and Punishment: How Intelligent Do You Have to Be to be Put to Death?

In this program, an ABC News correspondent visits the ongoing legal battle that prompted the initial 1980 ruling on the unconstitutionality of executing the mentally retarded: the case of John Paul Penry. This 22-minute program offers a debate between the prosecution and defense perspectives. Also commenting on the case are the prosecutor in all of Penry's trials and a Texas State Senator. For more information, contact: Films for the Humanities and Sciences, P.O. Box 2053, Princeton, NJ 08543-2053. Phone: 800/257-5126. Fax: 609/275-3767. New Journals Address Economic Crime Management and Digital Evidence

Utica College and the Economic Crime Investigation Institute have launched two online journals: the Journal of Economic Crime Management (JECM) and the International Journal of Digital Evidence (IJDE).

JECM, coedited by George Curtis and Gary R. Gordon of Utica College, is a forum for the publication and discussion of theory, research, policy and practice in the rapidly changing area of economic crime and fraud management. Its inaugural issue came out in Summer 2002 at the web address: <http://www.jecm.org>. Submissions may be e-mailed to George E. Curtis at gcurtis@utica.ucsu.edu or Gary R. Gordon at ggordon@utica.ucsu.edu.

IJDE, coedited by Gordon and John Leeson (University of Central Florida), offers discussion of theory, research, policy and practice in the field of digital evidence. Its web address is <http://www.ijde.org>. The journal's inaugural issue received a great welcome. Word spread very quickly about the journal and the journal averaged 2000-3000 hits per day in its first week and was visited by individuals from 32 countries. Submissions may be e-mailed to the editor, Gary R. Gordon, at ggordon@utica.ucsu.edu or the Associate Editor, John Leeson, at jleeson@hotmail.com.

Both journals are peer-reviewed quarterly publications with no subscription costs. Gary R. Gordon is coauthor (with R. Bruce McBride) of Criminal Justice Internships: Theory into Practice, 4th ed. (Anderson, 2001). For further information, e-mail him or contact him at: Utica College, 1600 Burrstone Road, Utica, NY 13502.

University of Cincinnati Ranked No. 1 in Criminal Justice Research

The Criminal Justice Division of the University of Cincinnati's College of Education is the nation's leader in publication of research, according to a survey article in the Journal of Criminal Justice, by Jon Sorensen (Fitchburg State College) and Rocky Pilgrim (Boston College School of Law).

The University of Cincinnati and the University of Maryland held the two top positions in the survey, which was based on research published in leading criminology and criminal justice journals between 1995 and 1999. Also in the top ten were: Temple, University at Albany, Sam Houston State, University of Central Florida, University of Missouri-St. Louis, Washington State, University of Nebraska-Omaha and Pennsylvania State.

Alex R. Piquero (of Temple University at the time of the study and now of the University of Florida) had the most published articles in his field. Michael Vaughn (Georgia State University) was second. Two University of Cincinnati faculty members were included in the ranking: Distinguished Research Professor Francis T. Cullen was third on the list and associate professor John D. Wooldredge was fourth. The calculation for ranking did not include coauthorship of articles. When coauthorship was considered, Cullen was the national leader with 25 authorships. The remaining authors in the top ten were: David A. Klinger (University of Houston), Scott H. Decker (University of Missouri-St. Louis), Glenn D. Walters (Federal Bureau of Prisons), Raymond Paternoster (University of Maryland), Pamela L. Griset (University of Central Florida) and Thomas B. Marvell (JUSTEC Research).

International Flavor Expected at ACJS's 2003 Meeting in March

The International Section of the Academy of Criminal Justice Sciences (ACJS) is making every effort to ensure that the 2003 meeting of ACJS is a truly international event. The section is recruiting its members to propose workshops and panels on the important issues affecting the global community, such as terrorism, the World Criminal Court, international law and criminal procedure, the subjugation of women, and trafficking in people, arms and drugs.

Current issues within the section include pending elections of new officers, an ongoing discussion regarding associating with a journal, expanding international membership and sharing the scholarly work and professional experiences of section members. The International Section will host a luncheon at the 2003 meeting to which all international visitors are invited.

At the 2002 meeting in Anaheim, it was announced that the new Gerhard O.W. Mueller Award had been approved by the ACJS Board. The award, developed by Harry Dammer (University of Scranton), honors the recipient for work in comparative and international criminal justice. Dammer is chair of the Gerhard Mueller Award Committee, and the first award will be given at the 2003 annual meeting. For further information, see: <http://www.geocities.com/acjsinternational/home.html>

Justice Studies Association Plans Meeting for May in Albany

The Justice Studies Association will meet May 29-31, 2003, in Albany, New York. The conference theme will be: "Through the Prism of Gender and Culture: Social Inequalities and Restorative Justice in the 21st Century." Proposed topic areas include: Transforming Criminal Justice; Social and Restorative Justice; Social Injustice and Alternative Economies; Women and Survival; Masculinities and Power; Civilization, Discontent and Hope for the 21st Century.

The JSA is a non-for-profit membership association established in 1998 to foster progressive writing, research and practice in all areas of criminal, social and restorative justice. Members are scholars from all academic disciplines and fields of endeavor as well as activists and practitioners of justice from around the globe. The organization seeks to explore and develop social arrangements and ways of life that promote justice without violence and restore people to wholeness through interpersonal as well as social structural change.

Anyone wishing to present at the conference should send an abstract before January 10, 2003, to: Dan Okada, Justice Studies Association 2003 Program Chair, Division of Criminal Justice, California State University Sacramento, 6000 J Street, Sacramento, CA 95819.

Phillippe Zoummeroff Grant Supports Rehabilitation of Inmates in Custody

The Phillippe Zoummeroff Grant was launched to support initiatives in favor of the rehabilitation of inmates and about modes of custody. The grant supports the integration of researchers, university teachers and students with the "real world" and encourages their participation in field work.

Phillippe Zoummeroff, a member of the French Association of Criminology since 1999, is a retired manufacturer and collector who became interested in criminal matters through collecting books. He conceived this grant in June 2000, and has pledged to fund it with his own money. At the meeting of the Association trustees, on January 13, 2000, the proposal was accepted.

Every two years, the Phillippe Zoummeroff Grant is presented by the French Association of Criminology. For each session, Zoummeroff puts the amount of 16,000 Euros at the Association's disposal. The amount given to the winner is 12,000 Euros; the remaining 4,000 Euros are slated for administrative expenses for the grant and its reevaluation.

The grant is delivered to an individual or a legal person of any nation who authors an original project concerning the rehabilitation of persons in custody. Application forms can be written in either French or English; the jury's deliberations are held in French.

The "project" may be a project that has not yet been implemented, one that is actually being carried out or an improvement on an already existing project. The project can be about the inmates themselves, inmates' relatives or the professional and voluntary workers who participate in the rehabilitation process. It can focus on operational, cultural, educational, economic, social, socio-therapeutic, psychological and medical issues and use various techniques for aftercare, training, job creation and site design and management. It may also involve communications, disseminating information by traditional means or via the Internet.

This grant is expected to promote concern on the part of society for the rehabilitation of persons in custody. It is officially delivered to the winner during a meeting held by the Association a few months after its award, where the winner introduces his or her project. Upon receiving the grant, the winner pledges to give an account to the Association every year of how the money was spent. Additionally, the winner must provide information about the results of his or her project when the next grant is awarded.

The jury awarding the grant is composed of nine members, who cannot fulfill more than two mandates in succession. The current jury consists of: Pierre Landreville, chair; Frederic Blettery; Jean-Marc Elchardus; Annie Kensey; André Kuhn; René Lévy; Godefroy du Mesnil du Buisson; Florence Raynal; and Yves Prigent.

For further information on the grant, contact: Annie Kensey, Ministère de la Justice, Direction de l'administration pénitentiaire, Bureau des études, de la prospective et du budget (PMJ 1), 8/10 rue du Renard, 75004 Paris. Phone: 01 49 96 26 28. E-mail: Annie.Kensey@justice.gouv.fr

NEACJS Hold Successful Annual Meeting

The Northeastern Association of Criminal Justice Sciences (NEACJS) held a successful annual meeting June 6-9, 2002, at Roger Williams University in Bristol, RI. The theme of the meeting was "Terrorism: Old Crimes in New Packages?" The program was diverse, ranging from a movie showing and discussion on using the film A Clockwork Orange in criminal justice education, to a wide variety of presentations on terrorism, pedagogy and issues on the cutting edge of criminal justice. Conference staff included:

Patricia Loveless (Pennsylvania State University, Altoona), Coordinator; Louis Procaccini (Roger Williams University), Facilities "Guru"; David Owens (Onondaga Community College), Display Coordinator; and Karel Kurst-Swanger (SUNY, Oswego), On-Site Exhibit Coordinator.

New officers were elected. Patricia Loveless (Pennsylvania State University, Altoona), President; David Owens (Onondaga Community College), First Vice President; Edward LeClair (Salem State College), Second Vice President; Donna Stuccio (Onondaga Community College), Treasurer, and Denise Gosselin (Western New England College), Secretary. Kevin Ryan (Vermont Bar Association) is the Immediate Past President, and Roslyn Muraskin (Long Island University) is the ACJS Regional Representative.

Annual student paper awards were conferred as well. Jennifer Schulenberg (University of Waterloo) won the graduate award for "The Social Context of Police Discretion with Young Offenders: An Ecological Analysis." Mary L. Sprayregen (Skidmore College) won the first prize in the undergraduate category for "Examining Offender Characteristics: A Theory of Successful Justice?" Jessica Samuel (Delaware Valley College) won the second prize in the undergraduate category for "Intensive Case Management as a Solution to a Long Term Problem: A Case Study."

The NEACJS Student Paper Award recognizes outstanding scholarly work by students. Participants need not be matriculated in a criminal justice program at either the undergraduate or graduate level, but a faculty member at the student's institution must select papers for submission. Faculty members should submit four copies of the best papers they receive, along with a cover letter stating their own name and affiliation. Papers are due in the early Spring and should be sent to: Penny Shtull, Ph.D., Assistant Professor, Norwich University, Justice Studies and Sociology, 158 Harmon Drive, Northfield, VT 05663-1035. Grant Availability

The Foundation Center Proves to Be Good Resource for Finding Private Funding

The Foundation Center's mission is to support and improve institutional philanthropy by promoting public understanding of the field and helping grantseekers succeed. The Center collects, organizes and communicates information on U.S. philanthropy, conducts and facilitates research on trends in the field, provides education and training on the grant-seeking process, and ensures public access to information and services through their web site, publications, library/learning centers and a national network of cooperating collections. Founded in 1956, the Center is a leading authority on institutional philanthropy and is dedicated to serving grantseekers, grantmakers, researchers, policymakers, the media and the general public.

While The Foundation Center does not specialize in criminal justice and related topics, its content-heavy web site (<http://fdncenter.org>) offers valuable assistance in finding grants. In addition to assisting with preliminary funding research, it allows users to search or browse abstracts of the web sites of 2,000 private foundations, corporate grantmakers, grantmaking public charities and community foundations. Online tools for conducting research on who might fund your program are available for a monthly fee.

The Foundation Center is tracking September 11th relief and recovery efforts, as well as the additional impact the tragedy may have on grantmaker programs and policies. It is gathering information about contributions made to particular relief funds and organizations by foundations and corporations, and will later focus on funds and services provided by recipient agencies.

As part of the effort, they are assessing the long-term impact of 9/11 and the recent economic downturn of philanthropic giving. Anyone with information helpful to this study is encouraged to submit materials to the Center, addressed to Crisis Response, Foundation Center, 79 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10003-3076.
