Jurisdictional reach
People and businesses no longer leave a footprint on just one state. You can’t afford to miss something that might adversely affect a business decision, so it’s important to cast a wide net whether you are researching a current or potential vendor or new business partner, or trying to obtain competitive intelligence. If, for example, a potential business partner has had numerous judgments and liens in many jurisdictions, or is associated with an individual or business that could create a potential conflict, you need to know. Reduce the risk of missing something by using SmartLinx. With nearly 35 billion records, the SmartLinx feature can, with one easy search across jurisdictions, find and deliver concise, rolled-up results from the largest available public records collection.

Address roll up
Quickly and easily determine the most current address and telephone number for a person and business.

Warning flags
Flags indicate where there may be a problem (e.g., a Social Security number assigned to more than one person) or where the data checks out (e.g., address confirmed).
Rolled-up results

Time is money. Nationwide and statewide public records results obtained through nexis.com are valuable, but it can be time consuming to sort through and interpret results. SmartLinx bundles all of the information returned about a person or business and their associates, and returns those comprehensive results in one, easy and quick-to-read report. SmartLinx even links people and businesses when they don’t appear together in a public record.

Locating telephone numbers

Many individuals do not have telephone numbers listed in their own names and it becomes very difficult to locate a telephone number associated with those individuals. When using SmartLinx, once the entity is located, telephone numbers for all addresses associated with an individual are revealed, whether that telephone number is listed in their name or not, therefore greatly increasing the chances of locating a telephone number.

Find connections

It’s a fact that some people and businesses have something to hide. Whether you are determining the financial stability of a potential business partner or if a potential vendor is associated with individuals or businesses that could create a problem for your company, or if you need to obtain information on a competitor, SmartLinx can help. Powered by our proprietary linking and reporting technology, SmartLinx finds the connections between people, businesses, assets and locations and returns results to you in seconds even when the entities are not listed in the same public record.

Associates and neighbors

Among the connections that SmartLinx uncovers is information on neighbors and associates, providing invaluable information on these additional associations.

Just one search instead of many

In just one search, SmartLinx saves immeasurable time by checking diverse and innumerable records such as property records, bankruptcy records, concealed weapons, professional licenses, foreclosures, judgments and liens, UCC filings, employment information, and criminal records. SmartLinx is a reliable research starting point that helps you retrieve relevant, associated information that otherwise would require a number of individual searches. However, it is recommended that you conduct additional searches for sources not included in the SmartLinx report (e.g., Alternate Phones for cell numbers and unlisted numbers).

Economic changes

Check the pulse of the financial conditions of your vendors and the competition. The wide-ranging resources SmartLinx draws upon provide insight not only on the fiscal climate past and present, but also assist you with developing a more accurate picture about the future of those whose business health potentially affects your business.

Competitive advantage

With nearly 35 billion records, no other public records provider is as comprehensive or features the powerful, industry-leading technology that delivers the content. SmartLinx provides the advantage you need to deliver the best results for your clients.
