

To help you use and teach Lexis® Advance for Law Schools BETA most effectively, we want you to know what sources and functionality are currently in the system, and what will be available in the near future.

WHAT'S AVAILABLE IN THE BETA?

Right now, Lexis Advance includes:

- Federal and State Case Law
- Federal and State Codes, Constitutions, Public Laws and Court Rules
- Briefs, Pleadings and Motions
- A variety of Secondary Sources, Legal Forms and Docketed Information

WHAT'S ON THE WAY?

Lexis Advance will soon include the following sources with the same coverage as lexis.com®:

- ALM Publications
- Law Reviews & Journals
- Public Records
- State & Federal Administrative Codes
- State & Federal Registers

We'll also add some of the most accessed sources from lexis.com:

- Bills and Bill Tracking from the last two sessions
- News from the last two years
- Top Administrative Agency Materials
- Top Legal Forms
- Top Treatises, Practice Guides and Jurisprudences

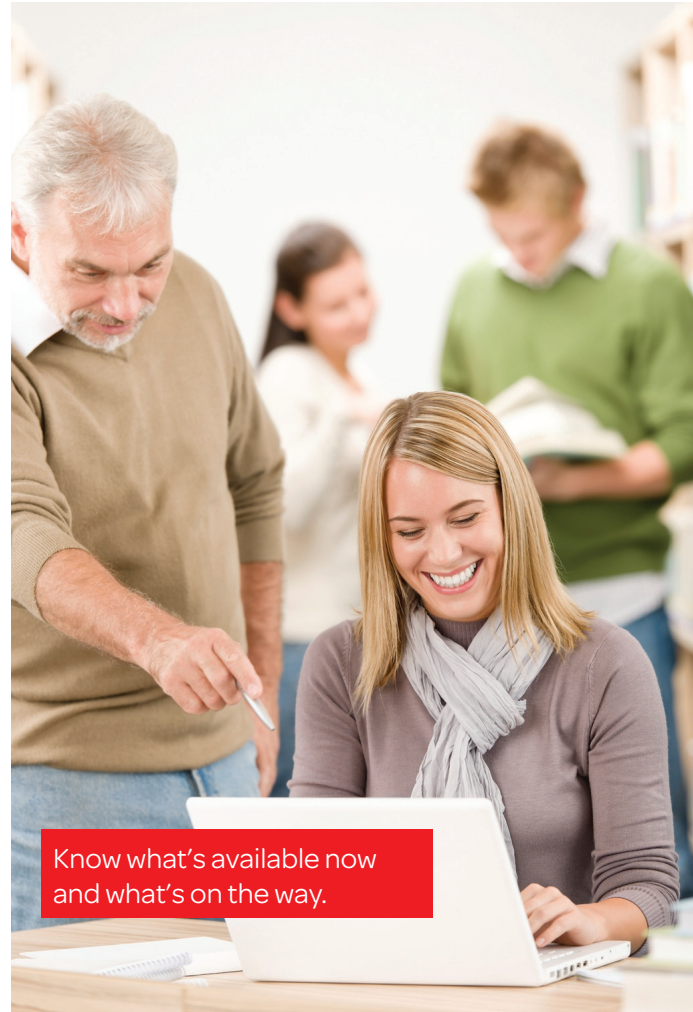

New functionality will be available as well:

- Printing to your local printer
- Search Within Results (FOCUS™)
- Did You Mean (spell check)

In the meantime, any sources or functionality not yet available on Lexis Advance are on lexis.com to fully meet all of your research needs.

Use these PDFs to see, in detail, the content that will soon be available on Lexis® Advance for Law Schools *BETA* or how to determine when it's best to use Lexis Advance.

Read attorney and Harvard Law School librarian Kyle K. Courtney's review of Lexis Advance for Law Schools *BETA*.

Know what's available now
and what's on the way.