Documents of the National Security Council, Ninth Supplement brings together a large number of documents issued by the National Security Council (NSC). The documents cover a broad range of issues during the years 1947 through 1994 in the areas of national defense and security, nuclear weapons and testing, arms control, general foreign relations, foreign aid, trade relations, and international cooperation.

According to the official White House Web site (www.whitehouse.gov/nsc/), “[t]he NSC is the President’s principal forum for considering national security and foreign policy matters with his senior national security advisors and cabinet officials. Since its inception under President Truman, the function of the Council has been to advise and assist the President on national security and foreign policies. The Council also serves as the President’s principal arm for coordinating these policies among various government agencies.” The excellent “History of the National Security Council, 1947–1997,” written by the Office of the Historian, U.S. Department of State, August 1997, can be found at www.whitehouse.gov/nsc/history.

Different administrations had different names for their NSC documents, but some of the more prominent were National Security Council Intelligence Directives (Truman and Eisenhower), National Security Action Memorandums (Kennedy and Johnson), National Security Study Memorandums and National Security Decision Memorandums (Nixon and Ford), and National Security Decision Directives (Reagan). The material in this collection is arranged in sections containing documents of each designation. A typical set of documents included a directive from the president, often through his national security adviser, that ordered the NSC staff or its Under Secretaries Committee (USC) to consider an issue, conduct appropriate studies (through meetings and working subgroups), and come to agreement on and submit a set of recommendations to the president. The NSC staff or USC would do this, and the president would then review the studies and recommendations and issue his decisions in a document called an Action Memorandum, Decision Directive, or Decision Memorandum.

The following sections describe the major topics covered in this collection.
General Foreign Relations

Presidents from Harry S. Truman to Ronald Reagan charged the NSC with formulating consistent, credible U.S. policies toward various countries and world regions, especially areas that were facing serious problems or with which the United States was experiencing difficult relations. These places included, at different times, South America, Central America, Indochina, Portugal, Greece, the Philippines, South Korea, southern Africa, the Horn of Africa, Afghanistan, India, Pakistan, Mexico, Israel, the Middle East, Oceania, China, and the USSR. Collection documents show the USC members engaging in debates over which direction U.S. policy should take. In general, the State Department and NSC staffers advocated policies that they felt would further U.S. political interests, while the Defense Department argued for positions that would enhance U.S. security at home and defense posture abroad, and the under secretaries of other departments like Commerce and Treasury tended to support policies that furthered U.S. economic and financial interests.

The USC—composed of under secretaries of the various federal departments, plus top officials from the major independent agencies and the military—became heavily involved in deciding whether, and to what extent, the United States should engage in international cooperation, especially in the areas of science, technology, and environment. Specific topics included the cooperative or competitive development of both the Arctic region and Antarctica, ocean mineral resources development, pollution control, weather modification, disaster relief, hurricane abatement, and medical research.

The aspect of cooperation that received the most substantial NSC attention was international collaboration in space; most significantly, between the United States and the USSR but also involving other countries like Japan. President Nixon remarked: “Just as space exploration has benefited from competition between the United States and the Soviet Union, it could also benefit from cooperation. It could help to raise the level of confidence between the Soviets and ourselves and promote a greater sense of world community.” Another hot topic centered around the question of whether the United States should help Europe—France, in particular—to build a European facility for enriching uranium.

During the years of the Nixon administration, the NSC conducted an exhaustive assessment of cooperative U.S.-USSR research projects in areas such as space, medicine, energy, and the environment. A fascinating feature of these documents is the USC working group’s examination of who benefited more, the United States or the Soviet Union, from each set of research projects. This calculation is referred to as the “balance of advantage.”

Additional collection documents show the NSC grappling with other foreign relations issues, including the threats of insurgency in places like Thailand, Bolivia, and Africa; the building of new embassies and consulates; reductions in U.S. civil and military employment abroad; federal agency funding for research on foreign affairs; and what to do about inferior, “makeshift” U.S. exhibits at international expositions and fairs.

Economic Relations

The most important aspects of U.S. economic relations with the rest of the world that the NSC studied involved aid or trade. During the Nixon years, the USC and its working groups performed a comprehensive review of U.S. foreign aid, with a view (at Nixon’s order) to reorganize the entire system. At various times, the NSC also reviewed aid to specific countries, as well as country groups such as developing countries or its subset, the least developing countries.
Other major efforts focused on international trade. The under secretaries studied and issued recommendations on tariffs and trade preferences for selected U.S. trading partners, including Latin America and the developing world. The NSC examined the likely impacts of European Community (EC) expansion on U.S. and world trade, considered the advisability of relaxing or tightening the controls on exports of sensitive items like computers and space technology, and made recommendations concerning economic sanctions on various nations including South Africa, Cuba, and countries like Lebanon, Egypt, and Jordan that sheltered skyjackers.

Military Affairs
The NSC devoted considerable effort to studying questions of critical importance to U.S. defense and world peace. These questions included the following: Should NATO build up its forces and, if so, what role should the United States play? How can the United States get the Federal Republic of Germany to shoulder more of the heavy costs of stationing U.S. troops in West Germany? Should the United States reduce or increase its troop deployments in countries like South Korea, Thailand, and the Philippines? How should the United States negotiate to keep its overseas bases, and which bases, if any, could be disbanded? Should the United States help Brazil build destroyers, sell jets to Argentina and Chile, or help the Netherlands build submarines? Should the United States increase or reduce its military assistance to Thailand, Korea, Israel, Africa, and Latin America?

Other military topics in the collection include the proposed discontinuation of UN radio broadcasts to North Korea, the handling of maritime incidents such as the Coast Guard’s seizure of Soviet fishing vessels off the Alaska coast, and the coordination of U.S. intelligence on other countries. On the last subject, the navy and air force fought for the right to be in charge of air intelligence.

Treaties and Negotiations
The NSC spent much of its energy attempting to lay out the appropriate U.S. positions on the negotiation or renegotiation of existing or proposed treaties. These included the ABM Treaty, the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT), the Compact for the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia, the Limited Test Ban Treaty, the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), the Geneva Protocol of 1925 (on chemical weapons), the Geneva Convention on the Continental Shelf, the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START), and the Seabed Arms Control Treaty.

One of the most significant sets of documents in this collection is the series of National Security Decision Directives issued by President Ronald Reagan on his summit talks with Soviet General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev on U.S.-USSR arms reduction and other security issues affecting the two superpowers and, by implication, the rest of the world. Starting with preparations for the first meeting between the two men in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1985, a series of directives order the U.S. negotiating positions for the ongoing Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START) and related nuclear testing and space defense talks that led eventually to the signing of the Intermediate-Range Nuclear Forces (INF) Treaty in 1987 and the Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START) in 1991. The directives lay out the negotiating positions, including the quids pro quo between the two sides, in great detail. It is fascinating to watch the offers and demands change from one summit meeting between the two principals to the next, as well as through the subsequent rounds of talks between their negotiating teams. It is satisfying as well to see the positions of the two sides gradually move closer together.

The collection is not without amusing asides. On several occasions, a White House official chides the NSC for the length of its submissions to the president. On one (Reel 2, Frame 0085), H. R. Haldeman sends a note to National Security Adviser Henry Kissinger on the voluminous supporting documentation attached to a memorandum on proposed U.S. civilian and military employment reductions in the Philippines: “This one sure looks like a good example of about 100 times too much paper. Don’t you just want to send in the summary? And maybe brief it on one page?”

Overall, the collection offers the student of political history an unusual opportunity to examine the studies and recommendations prepared by the NSC groups on a wide variety of critical issues. Of equal interest, perhaps, is the manner in which the members debated their often fundamental disagreements on policy and eventually came to agree or at least compromise—or ultimately failed to reach common ground, even under heavy pressure from people like Elliott Richardson and Henry Kissinger.

There is established a council to be known as the National Security Council (hereinafter in this section referred to as the “Council”).

The President of the United States shall preside over meetings of the Council; Provided, That in his absence he may designate a member of the Council to preside in his place.

The function of the Council shall be to advise the President with respect to the integration of domestic, foreign, and military policies relating to the national security so as to enable the military services and the other departments and agencies of the Government to operate more effectively in matters involving the national security.

The Council shall be composed of—
(1) the President;
(2) the Vice-President;
(3) the Secretary of State;
(4) the Secretary of Defense;
(5) the Director for Mutual Security;
(6) the Chairman of the National Security Resources Board; and
(7) the Secretaries and Under Secretaries of other executive departments and of the military departments, the Chairman of the Munitions Board, and the Chairman of the Research and Development Board, when appointed by the President and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to serve at his pleasure.

(b) Additional functions
In addition to performing such other functions as the President may direct, for the purpose of more effectively coordinating the policies and functions of the departments and agencies of the Government relating to the national security it shall, subject to the direction of the President, be the duty of the Council—

(1) to assess and appraise the objectives, commitments, and risks of the United States in relation to our actual and potential military power, in the interest of national security, for the purpose of making recommendations to the President in connection therewith; and
(2) to consider policies on matters of common interest to the departments and agencies of the Government concerned with the national security, and to make recommendations to the President in connection therewith.
(c) Executive secretary; appointment; staff employees

The Council shall have a staff to be headed by a civilian executive secretary who shall be appointed by the President. The executive secretary, subject to the direction of the Council, is authorized, subject to the civil-service laws and chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5, to appoint and fix the compensation of such personnel as may be necessary to perform such duties as may be prescribed by the Council in connection with the performance of its functions.

(d) Recommendations and reports

(July 26, 1947, ch. 343, title I, § 101, 61 Stat. 497; Aug. 10, 1949, ch. 412, § 3, 63 Stat. 579; Oct. 28, 1949, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a), 63 Stat. 972; Oct. 10, 1951, ch. 479, title V, § 501(e)(1), 65 Stat. 378.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

The civil-service laws, referred to in subsec. (c), are set forth in Title 5, Government Organization and Employees. See, particularly, section 3301 et seq. of that title.

CODIFICATION

In subsec. (c), provisions that specified compensation of $10,000 per year for the executive secretary to the Council are omitted as obsolete and superseded. Sections 1202 and 1204 of the Classification Act of 1949, 63 Stat. 972, 973, repealed the Classification Act of 1923 and all other law or parts of laws inconsistent with the 1949 Act. The Classification Act of 1949 was repealed by Pub. L. 89-554, Sept. 6, 1966, § 8(a), 80 Stat. 632, and reenacted as chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of Title 5, Government Organization and Employees. Section 5102 of Title 5 now contains the applicability provisions of the 1949 Act, and section 5103 of Title 5 authorizes the Civil Service Commission to determine the applicability to specific positions and employees.

“Chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of title 5” was substituted for “the Classification Act of 1949, as amended” on authority of section 7(b) of Pub. L. 89-554, Sept. 6, 1966, 80 Stat. 631, section 1 of which enacted Title 5.

AMENDMENTS

1951—Subsec. (a). Act Oct. 10, 1951 inserted clause (5), relating to Director for Mutual Security, in fourth paragraph, and renumbered former clauses (5) and (6) thereof as clauses (6) and (7), respectively.

1949—Subsec. (a). Act Aug. 10, 1949, added the Vice-President to the Council, removed the Secretaries of the military departments, to authorize the President to add, with the consent of the Senate, Secretaries and Under Secretaries of other executive departments and of the military department, and the Chairmen of the Munitions Board and the Research and Development Board.

Subsec. (c). Act Oct. 28, 1949, substituted the “Classification Act of 1949” for the “Classification Act of 1923, as amended.”

REPEALS

Act Oct. 28, 1949, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a), 63 Stat. 972, set out in the credit of this section, was repealed (subject to a savings clause) by Pub. L. 89-554, Sept. 6, 1966, § 8, 80 Stat. 632, 655.

Except as provided in subsections (f) and (g) of section 303 of the Federal Executive Salary Act of 1964 [see sections 5316(100) and 5317 of Title 5], no officer or employee of the National Security Agency shall be paid basic compensation at a rate in excess of the highest rate of basic compensation contained in such General Schedule. Not more than seventy such officers and employees shall be paid basic compensation at rates equal to rates of basic compensation contained in grades 16, 17, and 18 of such General Schedule. “Sec. 6. (a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, nothing in this Act or any other law (including, but not limited to, the first section and section 2 of the Act of August 28, 1935 (5 U.S.C. 654) [repealed by Pub. L. 86-626, title I, § 101, July 12, 1960, 74 Stat. 427]) shall be construed to require the disclosure of the organization or any function of the National Security Agency, or any information with respect to the activities thereof, or of the names, titles, salaries, or number of the persons employed by such agency.

“(b) The reporting requirements of section 1582 of title 10, United States Code, shall apply to positions established in the National Security Agency in the manner provided by section 4 of this Act.
