INTRODUCTION

The papers of the Dewey-Bliss family represent five generations of the Dewey family of Williamstown, Northampton, and Worcester, Massachusetts, and four generations of the Bliss family of Royalston and Worcester, Massachusetts. The collection spans from the late eighteenth century into the mid-twentieth century, with the concentration from the 1810s through the 1930s. This collection documents the lives and values of highly literate, upper-class New Englanders. All five generations of Dewey males represented here were lawyers: four graduated from Williams College, three graduated from Harvard Law School, three were judges, and two were Massachusetts Supreme Court justices. Harrison Bliss (1812–1882)—whose daughter Lizzie (1856–1950) married Francis Henshaw Dewey II (1856–1933), thereby connecting the two families—was a very successful entrepreneur in the booming city of Worcester in the mid-nineteenth century. Several major figures of the nineteenth century are represented in the collection, if only fleetingly: John Quincy Adams, Daniel Webster, Judge Lemuel Shaw, Andrew Jackson, Julia Ward Howe, and others.

A sizable portion of the collection was generated by the women of the family. In some cases, these women have their own series of correspondence or diaries in the collection. But often their voices are found scattered through the series of their husband's, son's, father's, mother's, or daughter's papers. These records document events and relationships in the women's lives over the course of many years. It is in the voluminous correspondence series where the women's voices are the clearest in this collection. Related materials in some of the series include school composition books, eulogies and obituaries, and some personal financial records.

The males in the family also yield a mix of diaries, correspondence, financial records and other personal documents. The diaries are not narrative chronicles, but lists of events and appointments. The richness of the male voices is also to be found in the correspondence. For a couple of the males, however, there are extensive series of receipted bills. These provide a record of household expenses, furnishings, and in some cases pharmaceutical items for an upper-class family in the late nineteenth century. In an effort to keep this edition focused on the personal aspects of the men's lives, several sizable series of professional correspondence were not microfilmed. The editorial note in this guide lists the portions of these collections that were not microfilmed. That correspondence is open for interested researchers at the American Antiquarian Society.

The subgroupings in the collection are organized into series according to the recipients of the letters. Following is a summary of each series in this microfilm collection:

Papers of Daniel Dewey

Daniel Dewey (1766–1815) was a lawyer in Williamstown, Massachusetts. His high standing in the state is apparent from the fact that he was elected to the Governor's Council in 1809 and again in 1812. This series of his papers includes copies of his commission to the Governor's Council and as presidential elector for Massachusetts in 1808. Daniel Dewey was elected to Congress in 1812, held his seat during 1813, and then resigned in the spring of 1814 after accepting an appointment to the Supreme Judicial Council of Massachusetts. The only document in this small series that reveals a personal voice is Dewey's "Statement of My Religious Beliefs." The subsequent series pertaining to Daniel's son, Charles Augustus Dewey, however, includes a letter by Daniel to Charles at Lenox Academy. Each generation of Dewey men subsequent to this is documented in correspondence with their fathers (and mothers) during their tenure at boarding schools and colleges. Daniel's wife, Maria Noble, is only briefly mentioned in the collection. From genealogical materials in the collection it is noted that she was a daughter of Judge David Noble, one of the founders of Williams College.

Papers of Charles Augustus Dewey

Charles Augustus Dewey (1793–1866), son of Daniel Dewey, graduated from Williams College in 1811 and continued the family tradition in the practice of law in Williamstown. Like his father, he was named to the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in 1837. Charles Augustus Dewey was married twice. His first wife, Frances Aurelia Henshaw Dewey (1796–1821), died after giving birth to their son, Francis Henshaw Dewey I. Charles Augustus's second wife was Caroline Hannah Clinton Dewey (1800–1864). There is extensive material by both of these women in the collections, including separate correspondence series described below.

The papers of Charles Augustus Dewey include an 1807 letter from his father imparting advice to the young scholar at Lenox Academy as well as letters from Charles's sister, Caroline A. Dewey (Betts). There is also correspondence from Charles's son, Francis Henshaw Dewey I, in the 1830s during the latter's tenure at the Dillingham School in Pittsfield, at Amherst Academy, and at Williams College. There are also several letters from second wife Caroline Hannah Clinton Dewey.

In the small series of General Correspondence there are materials from John Quincy Adams, Daniel Webster, Governor Edward Everett, and Chief Justice Lemuel Shaw. There are items pertaining to the legal profession in Massachusetts, the Boston Law Club, and national politics. A number of school records pertain to Charles's tenure as a student at Lenox Academy and Williams College.

Papers of Frances Aurelia Henshaw Dewey

Although she was only married to Charles Augustus Dewey for less than two years, Frances Aurelia Henshaw Dewey (1796–1821) brought the Henshaw name into the Dewey family, where the appellation was subsequently bestowed upon male and female descendants for more than one hundred years. The Family Correspondence series includes letters from her Henshaw brothers and from her in-laws. The correspondence with the in-laws, Caroline A. Dewey Betts and Samuel R. Betts of Newbergh, New York, is particularly rich in 1820 and 1821 in that both sides of the exchanges are represented. Of special note also, in the General Correspondence subseries are letters to Frances Aurelia Henshaw, before she married, from her female friend, Mary Hooker. These letters were written between 1812 and 1819. Finally, there are a few financial records and school records documenting the education of Frances Aurelia Henshaw. The will of her father, Samuel Henshaw, rounds out the series. Note, however, that in the series of her son, Francis Henshaw Dewey I, there is a biography of Frances Aurelia among the Genealogical materials (Reel 2, Frame 0593). Also, on Reel 16 there is a subseries of Octavo Volumes that includes two volumes of a journal kept by Frances Aurelia Henshaw Dewey. The first volume spans the years 1812–1815 when she was a young woman. The second covers 1820 when she was newly wed. These journals contain philosophical and religious thoughts, poetry, character sketches, and prayers.

Papers of Caroline Hannah Clinton Dewey

The small series of Papers of Caroline Hannah Clinton Dewey (1800–1864) (not to be confused with her sister-in-law, Caroline A. Dewey Betts) is comprised entirely of affectionate correspondence from her stepson, Francis Henshaw Dewey I, during his tenure as a student at Dillingham School and at Williams College between 1836 and 1839. Her correspondence can also be found in the series of her husband's correspondence (Charles Augustus Dewey, described above) and her son's papers (Francis Henshaw Dewey I, described below).

Papers of Francis Henshaw Dewey I

Francis Henshaw Dewey I (1821–1887) graduated from Williams College in 1840 and attended both Yale College and Harvard Law School. He began the practice of law in Worcester in 1842. He married Frances Amelia Clarke in 1846. This series contains personal correspondence to Francis Henshaw Dewey I from his sister, female cousins, and stepmother (Caroline Hannah Clinton Dewey). Correspondence from his wife, Frances Amelia, commences in 1850 when she was removed from Worcester first to Northampton then to Georgia in an effort to treat her tuberculosis. Frances' correspondence during this period of separation, until the time of her death in 1851, amounts to forty-three letters. There were no children of this marriage. There is a small series of Frances Amelia's papers described below.

Francis Henshaw Dewey I married for a second time to Sarah Barker Tufts Wheaton, who had divorced from Henry Wheaton. Sarah had a daughter from her first marriage, Jane Bates Wheaton (1847–1863). Jane Bates Wheaton died at the young age of sixteen, but there is a folder of correspondence between her and her mother while Jane attended boarding school. Jane was adopted by Francis Henshaw Dewey I after the marriage, and she was also known as Jenny Dewey. This series is part of Sarah's correspondence series described further below. The marriage of Sarah Barker Tufts Wheaton and Francis Henshaw Dewey I produced five children who survived to adulthood: Caroline Clinton Dewey (1854–1878), Francis Henshaw Dewey II (1856–1933), John Clarke Dewey (1845–1932), George Tufts Dewey (1858–1934), and Sarah Frances Dewey (1860–1892). There is a significant quantity of husband-wife correspondence between Sarah and Francis Henshaw Dewey I. His letters to her, including courtship correspondence, can be found in her separate correspondence series, which is described below. Her correspondence to Francis Henshaw Dewey I can be found in the present series. There is also correspondence from his children, notably from Francis Henshaw Dewey II during that son's tenure at Williams College (1872–1876) and at Harvard Law School.

A small series of General Correspondence documents Francis Henshaw Dewey I's role in the legal profession in Massachusetts. There is professional and friendship correspondence from notables such as Lemuel Shaw, Charles Worthington, Charles Emerson, and Emory Washburn. Some of these letters are in the form of tributes to Francis Henshaw Dewey I's career and his ascension to the bench. The General Correspondence also contains letters to Francis Henshaw Dewey I from Williams College alumni. There is also a series of genealogical and biographical data on the Dewey family that was compiled by Francis Henshaw Dewey I.

Papers of Frances Amelia Clarke Dewey

This very small series of papers contains the correspondence of Francis Henshaw Dewey I to his dying wife during her illness with tuberculosis. Her more extensive correspondence to him can be found in the series of his papers described immediately above.

Papers of Prudence Clarke

Prudence Clarke was the mother of Frances Amelia Clarke Dewey. This series consists of a single letter from Francis Henshaw Dewey I asking Prudence Clarke for the hand of her daughter in marriage.

Papers of Sarah Barker Tufts Dewey

This series contains the papers of the second wife of Francis Henshaw Dewey I. It is further divided into Family Correspondence and General Correspondence. The undated folders at the beginning of the Family Correspondence series contain correspondence of Sarah Frances Dewey, at boarding school, to her mother in the 1870s. Courtship correspondence from Francis Henshaw Dewey I can be found in the first dated folder (Reel 2, Frame 0876). Letters of Francis Henshaw Dewey I offering family advice during his absences on the circuit court are in the folders dated between 1875 and 1878. Much of the correspondence is from relatives, notably from cousin Susan Dixon, who wrote thirty letters between 1871 and 1894. Also noteworthy are letters of Mary Bemis, between 1872 and 1875, about the challenges of her isolated life in Dudley, Massachusetts, as well as changes taking place in the town. Letters from Francis Henshaw Dewey II from Williams College to his mother begin in 1874 and continue during his early professional career in 1876 and 1877. Toward the end of the Family Correspondence series, there is correspondence from Francis Henshaw Dewey II's wife, Lizzie Bliss Dewey. There is also correspondence from three of the other children, Caroline Clinton Dewey, George Tufts Dewey, and John Clarke Dewey.

The General Correspondence section of the Papers of Sarah Barker Tufts Dewey includes a significant amount of correspondence from female friends. There are also letters from two ministers who were friends of Sarah, Reverend Edward Porter and Reverend Edward Huntington. The 1874–1876 folder (Reel 3, Frame 0384) documents Sarah's involvement with the Women's Auxiliary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Episcopal Church. This series also contains an important folder of Sarah's correspondence to her daughter, Jane Dewey, while Jane was attending boarding school. There are also letters from Francis Henshaw Dewey I to his stepdaughter Jane (Reel 3, Frame 0479).

Papers of Francis Henshaw Dewey II

Francis Henshaw Dewey II married Lizzie Davis Bliss (1856–1950), and together they are the largest contributors to this collection. Francis Henshaw Dewey II and Lizzie Bliss Dewey had two children, Elizabeth Bliss Dewey (1883–1971) and Francis Henshaw Dewey III (1887–1974).

Francis Henshaw Dewey II received a law degree from Harvard in 1878 and was admitted to the bar in Worcester in 1879. He was involved in many enterprises, including the Mechanics National Bank of Worcester, the Worcester Mechanics Savings Bank, the Worcester Gas Light Company, the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company, and several railroads. For forty years he was also the president of the Worcester Street Railway Company. Additionally, Francis Henshaw Dewey II took up many philanthropic and fraternal causes, including Williams College, Kappa Alpha Society, Clark University, the Worcester Art Museum, the First Unitarian Church of Worcester, and the American Antiquarian Society. The General Correspondence series in which most of Francis Henshaw Dewey II's professional and philanthropic correspondence is contained was not microfilmed with this edition. These materials are open for research in the original collection at the American Antiquarian Society.

This microfilm edition contains, instead, the Family Correspondence, Diaries, and School Records of Francis Henshaw Dewey II, as well as a large series of Receipted Bills for personal expenses. Family correspondence includes courtship correspondence from Lizzie Davis Bliss to Francis Henshaw Dewey II (Reel 3, Frame 0596) and Lizzie Bliss Dewey's letters to Francis Henshaw Dewey II over the course of their long lives. There is also substantial correspondence to Francis Henshaw Dewey II from both of his children; from his sisters and brothers; and from nieces, nephews, aunts, uncles, and cousins. There is a small amount of correspondence from Francis Henshaw Dewey II's father, Francis Henshaw Dewey I, before his death in 1887, but there is a significant stream of letters from his mother until her death in 1906. By 1904, Francis Henshaw Dewey III wrote to his father from boarding school and after 1905 from Williams College. By 1911, Francis Henshaw Dewey III wrote to his father from Harvard Law School. Francis Henshaw Dewey III married Dorothy Flagg Bowen before World War I. There is a significant stream of correspondence from both Francis Henshaw Dewey III and his wife during the war from Washington, D.C., and Paris, France, where Francis Henshaw Dewey III located, first with the War Production Board and then with the Versailles Peace delegation.

The Diaries of Francis Henshaw Dewey II chronicle the events and appointments in the life of this exceptionally industrious man. They span 1876 through 1933. The School Records document a young man's education at St. Marks boarding school in the late 1860s and at Williams College in the early 1870s. The large series of Receipted Bills documents household furnishings, food, consumer items, and many commodities purchased by the Dewey family between 1879 and 1913. They provide a detailed record of the material culture and consumption patterns of an upper-class family for that period. The large Receipted Bills subseries spans from Reel 6, Frame 0818 to Reel 11, Frame 0848.

Papers of Lizzie Bliss Dewey

Lizzie Bliss Dewey's papers span from her life as the young Lizzie Davis Bliss through her courtship with and marriage to Francis Henshaw Dewey II and her widowhood between his death in 1933 and her own death in 1950. The eighty-year chronicle of papers documenting her life provides a wealth of opportunities for the study of feminine values from her girlhood in 1865 to her old age in the mid-twentieth century. This series is further divided into Family Correspondence (1870–1945), General Correspondence (1868–1949), Diaries (1873, 1922–1949), Travel Diaries (1898, 1904), and School Records (1865–1877). These series are overlapping and interdependent. Researchers working in any time period should consult each of the subseries. Also note that there are significant amounts of Lizzie Bliss Dewey correspondence in the series of papers of her husband, Francis Henshaw Dewey II (described above); her son, Francis Henshaw Dewey III; her father, Harrison Bliss Sr.; and her children (described below). All Lizzie Bliss Dewey letters can be found by consulting the Principal Correspondents Index and the Subject Index at the back of this guide.

The Family Correspondence documents Lizzie Bliss Dewey from her childhood in boarding school in Boston. There is a sizable amount of correspondence between Lizzie and her parents, Harrison and Sarah Bliss, during her tenure at Miss Ireland's School in Boston between 1873 and 1874. Courtship letters from Francis Henshaw Dewey II can be found in the 1875 folders. Lizzie and Francis Henshaw Dewey II were separated most summers as she moved with the children to a summer home at Narragansett, Rhode Island, while he remained in Worcester on business. Lizzie's side of this annual exchange, which ran from 1885 through 1915, can be found in the Francis Henshaw Dewey II papers described earlier. After World War I, there are letters from Francis Henshaw Dewey III to his mother from Washington, D.C., and during his tenure in Paris with the Versailles Peace delegation. In the 1930s, Lizzie Bliss Dewey's grandchildren occasionally wrote to her. Granddaughter Dorothy Dewey wrote as a student at Smith College. Francis Henshaw Dewey III and his sister, Elizabeth Bliss Dewey, were frequent correspondents into the mid-twentieth century.

The General Correspondence series contains a wide array of friendship correspondence to Lizzie Bliss Dewey, including male and female friends. Notable among the male friends are Reverend Edward H. Hall, Worcester industrialist Stephen Salisbury, and Leonard Kinnicutt, a friend from Worcester and a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. There is an interesting vein of correspondence from friends at World War I army training camps and from members of the American Expeditionary Forces in France. Much of the general correspondence after 1900 sheds light on Lizzie Bliss Dewey's philanthropic work for churches, women's organizations, and charities. In 1937, Massachusetts U.S. Senator Henry Cabot Lodge wrote to her regarding President Franklin D. Roosevelt's "court-packing" initiative.

Lizzie Bliss Dewey's diaries are brief entries on episodes in her life and not introspective journals, except for the very first diary, kept in 1873 while she was a sixteen year old at Miss Ireland's School. The 1873 diary is perhaps the most rich and revealing diary in the entire collection. It documents her tenure at the boarding school, her church attendance and social visits, her reading habits, and the importance of her lifelong friendship with Reverend Edward Hall, pastor of the First Unitarian Church of Worcester. Lizzie Bliss Dewey's diaries resume in 1922, when she was sixty-six years old. Her reading habits and visits with many of the friends who appear in the General Correspondence are diligently noted. Family matters and visits with relatives who appear in the Family Correspondence are recorded as well. Her own health problems and grief over the death of her husband are covered in the later years of the journal. There are frequent notations on her work with the Unitarian Church and in various philanthropic causes. The hiatus in personal diaries between 1873 and 1922 is broken by two travel diaries. One is dated 1898 and records the Deweys' railroad trip to California. A second travel diary for 1904 records their transatlantic voyage and grand tour of Europe.

School Records date from 1865, when Lizzie was nine years old. They include compositions on class trips to Boston, Cambridge, and Dighton. There are notebooks and personal journals of her tenure at Miss Ireland's School.

There are eight manuscript volumes created by Lizzie Bliss Dewey on Reels 16 and 17, in the Octavo Volumes series. These include a testimonial volume from members of the Ladies Benevolent Society of the Unitarian Church; account book for the Helping Hand Society of the Unitarian Church; and sketchbooks, notebooks, and collections of watercolors.

Papers of Harrison Bliss Sr.

Harrison Bliss Sr. (d. 1882) was a wealthy Worcester capitalist. He married Sarah Haven Howe (1814–1882) in 1836. Children of this union who are represented in the collection include Lizzie Davis Bliss (noted above), Harrison Bliss Jr. (1843–1868), and William Howe Bliss (1850–1917). These children have their own series of correspondence in the collection (note immediately above and below). There are two series of Harrison Bliss Papers: Family Correspondence, which includes correspondence from his wife, children, and nieces and nephews, and a sizable series of Receipted Bills. This latter series, like the Receipted Bills series in the Francis Henshaw Dewey II Papers, documents the consumption and material culture of an upper-class New England family in the nineteenth century. The Harrison Bliss Receipted Bills series, however, covers a generation before the series in the Papers of Francis Henshaw Dewey II. The Bliss materials begin in 1840 and run through 1882. Business correspondence of Harrison Bliss was not microfilmed for this edition but may be consulted at the American Antiquarian Society.

Papers of Sarah Haven Howe Bliss

This is a small but particularly valuable series. It includes correspondence regarding Sarah Haven Howe Bliss's career as a schoolteacher before she married. It includes courtship correspondence from Harrison Bliss Sr. and letters from both Lizzie Bliss and Harrison Bliss Jr. at boarding school. In addition, there is correspondence from female friends and relatives, including Julia Ward Howe.

Papers of Harrison Bliss Jr.

This collection includes correspondence between Harrison Bliss Jr. and both of his parents. There is also a file of Civil War letters from a friend who wrote of military campaigns in the South. There is also a certificate of exemption from Civil War service for the young Bliss.

Papers of William Howe Bliss

This is a small series that contains an account book of William Howe Bliss and an obituary.

Papers of Francis Henshaw Dewey III

Francis Henshaw Dewey III, like his father and grandfather, graduated from Williams College and Harvard Law School. In 1913 he married Dorothy Flagg Bowen (1892–1974) of Providence, Rhode Island. Francis Henshaw Dewey III had a busy career, practicing law in Worcester and serving as a director of the Mechanics National Bank, two railroads, and an insurance company. He was also a trustee of Clark

University. In 1918 with his wife and family he moved to Washington, D.C., where he worked for the War Production Board. In 1919 he was part of the American delegation to the peace treaty at Versailles. During the Versailles trip, Dorothy remained in the United States and wrote her husband regularly. Letters from his parents during and immediately after the war are found in this series. Francis Henshaw Dewey III's and Dorothy's replies are to be found in the Papers of Francis Henshaw Dewey II and the Papers of Lizzie Bliss Dewey, described above. The earliest letters in this section date to 1893 and include correspondence to Francis Henshaw Dewey III from his parents and siblings.

Octavo Volumes

Octavo Volumes make up a separate set of manuscript materials in the collection. All of the Octavo Volumes of a personal interest have been selected for this edition. These include Frances Aurelia Henshaw Dewey's journals as a single young woman and as a newlywed, as well as personal volumes of Lizzie Bliss Dewey.

PRINCIPAL CORRESPONDENTS INDEX

The following index is a guide to the major correspondents in this microform publication. The first number after each entry refers to the reel, while the four-digit number following the colon refers to the frame number at which a particular file folder containing correspondence by the person begins. Hence, 2: 0876 refers to the folder that begins at Frame 0876 of Reel 2. By referring to the Reel Index, which constitutes the initial section of this guide, the researcher will find the folder date, inclusive dates and a list of Major Topics and Principal Correspondents, listed in the order in which they appear on the film.
