Confidential British Foreign Office Political Correspondence

The General Correspondence files were and still are the main repository for the documents collected by the British Foreign Office. The files contain the vast majority of the documentation received and created by the Foreign Office, which was established in January 1782. These are the working papers of the Foreign Office used in the development of British foreign policy. The information contained in the documents was often classified and was not made available for study outside of the British government until many years after the documents were created.

The filing system of the General Correspondence was significantly revised in 1906. Since 1906 the papers have been arranged into eleven classes of General Correspondence: Africa, New Series; Commercial; Communications; Consular; Contraband; Dominions Information; Library; News; Political; Prisoners of War and Aliens; and Treaty. Each of these classes contains the papers of the department after which it is named, except for Political, which is composed of several political departments.

This publication contains copies of only the Political class of General Correspondence. The Foreign Office is internally divided into departments. The political departments are those in which the diplomatic business of the Foreign Office is conducted. Diplomatic business should be thought of in very broad terms. It includes not only the formal relations between two countries but also the information needed by the British government in order to conduct diplomatic relations. This includes the domestic political, economic, social, and cultural conditions of another country plus that country’s relations with other nations, as well as British internal political concerns.

Each political department is responsible for the diplomatic relations between Great Britain and a number of countries. Below are listed the political departments and the countries they were responsible for during 1924 and 1925:

1924

1. American and African: America (North, South, and Central), Abyssinia, and Liberia
2. Central: Germany, Italy, Austria, Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia, Jugo-Slavia, Roumania, Bulgaria, and Greece
3. Eastern: Turkey, Persia, Egypt, and Hejaz
4. Far Eastern: China, Japan, and Siam
5. Northern: Russia, Finland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Poland, Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania, and Caucasus
6. Western, General, League of Nations: France, Spain, Portugal, Belgium, Holland, Luxemburg, and Morocco

1925
1. American and African: America (North, South, and Central), Liberia, Liquor Traffic, and Slave Trade
2. Central: Germany, Italy, Austria, Hungary, Czecho-Slovakia, Jugoslavia, Roumania, Bulgaria, and Greece
3. Eastern: Turkey, Caucasus, Persia, and Hejaz
4. Egyptian: Egypt, Sudan, Abyssinia, Tripoli, and Cyrenaica
5. Far Eastern: China, Japan, and Siam
6. Northern: Soviet Union, Finland, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Poland, Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania, and Afghanistan
7. Western, General, League of Nations: France, Spain, Portugal, Belgium, Holland, Luxemburg, Switzerland, Morocco, and New Hebrides

In this microfilm edition University Publications of America has published the formerly confidential General Correspondence: Political files on Germany from 1924 to 1925. The papers for each year were bound into volumes by the Foreign Office, in the order that they were originally filed. The majority of the documents found in these files are despatches, letters, and telegrams from British diplomatic posts to the Foreign Office and Foreign Office letters, telegrams, and instructions to the posts. In addition, there is a large number of documents created by the Foreign Office, such as minutes of meetings, reports, and correspondence with other government ministries and foreign government embassies in London. Also, cabinet papers dealing with foreign policy and parliamentary debates are kept in these files.

All documentation coming into the Foreign Office was opened by the Central Registry and placed inside docket sheets. Each docket sheet was stamped with the name of the country and the series (if not political), the date of receipt, and a registry number. In the case of outgoing correspondence that was not a response, a copy of that paper would receive its own docket sheet and registry number. The registry number began at number one each year, and dockets were numbered consecutively as they were received by the Central Registry. One numbering series was used for all departments within the Foreign Office.

Docket sheets with the enclosed document would then be forwarded to the department responsible for that country. Officials in the department would review the document and decide if or what action would be taken on the information contained in the document. Space on the docket sheets was available for officials to record recommendations and other information pertinent to that document. In addition, all documentation created in response to the original document was attached to the original docket sheet. These would include internal Foreign Office memoranda and reports, cabinet meetings and papers, and drafts and copies of the replies to the original document.
When action on a docket sheet and its attached papers was completed, it was returned to the Sub-Registry (there was a Sub-Registry on each floor of the Foreign Office). There the papers were filed by year, country, and subject for ready reference. Papers on the same subject would be filed together in numerical order with the lowest registry number first. The first registry number in the file was used as the file number. After one and a half to two years, an annual file would then be transferred to the library.

Germany, 1924–1925

For the first time since the end of World War I came a restoration of German confidence, a more stable financial situation, and an economic recovery. The turnabout came in large part because the victors in the war were losing their vengefulness and beginning to take realistic steps toward allowing Germany a place in the European community. The symbol and focus of the new attitude was the Dawes Plan, named for its American sponsor, Charles Gates Dawes.

Dawes, a banker, an active Republican, and a proven administrator, had been invited by the Reparation Commission to assemble a group of experts and produce a workable plan for reparations payments and the restoration of the German mark. The plan he presented in April 1924 was elaborated and modified by a conference in London in August, which included German representatives. There French Premier Édouard Herriot agreed to begin withdrawing French troops from the Rhineland within one year. The plan was accepted by all parties in September. Because the plan involved a major loan to the Germans, primarily from American bankers, and because it seemed to finalize reparations issues, it prompted a further outpouring of private loans and energies dedicated to bringing the country back to economic health. German voters responded to these developments by strengthening the center parties at the polls in December. (They had done just the opposite in May.)

When the French replaced Premier Raymond Poincaré with the more conciliatory Herriot in May, it was further evidence that vengeance would no longer determine France’s policy as it had since 1918. The British had already been feeling merciful for some time, and the Americans were showing signs of feeling guilty about what they had done to the League of Nations. Very likely there was also on all sides a revived eagerness to get on with deal-making, as suggested by President Calvin Coolidge’s dictum that “The business of America is business.”

Less promising for the future was the outcome of the trial of Adolph Hitler and Erich Ludendorff in Munich in the spring of 1924. An unrepentant Hitler used the trial as a propaganda forum for the Nazi cause, but he was sentenced to only five years’ jail time, eligible for parole in six months—for high treason. Ludendorff was acquitted altogether.

As 1925 opened, it became clear that evacuation of troops from the Rhineland was not going to begin. The Allies’ conditions as to disarmament had not been met in several important particulars. It would be January 1926 before the process got under way, though evacuation of the Ruhr proceeded in the summer of 1925.
Friedrich Ebert, president of the Weimar Republic since its founding, died following an operation in February 1925, leaving the politicians at odds over a successor. Finally, in a runoff election in April, it proved to be the torpid, honorable, and politically naïve old Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg. British Foreign Office observers saw no danger in him personally but worried about his ultranationalist supporters.

On the diplomatic front, late 1925 saw further progress in reconciliation. An Anglo-German commercial treaty was ratified in August, and in late November the multilateral Locarno treaties, which had been negotiated with German participation, were accepted by the Reichstag. Finally, in December, debates began on Germany’s entrance into the League of Nations.

EDITORIAL NOTE

University Publications of America has microfilmed in their entirety all volumes of British Foreign Office General Correspondence: Political (FO 371) for Germany from 1924 through 1925.

Brackets are used in a number of ways in the Reel Index to convey unique features of the microfilm collection. For example, the entry for registry number C 903/18/24 on Reel 39, which contains “Pages 133–[325a],” illustrates that the page range for this file ends with a page that was not numbered but that followed page 325. Similarly, if a Foreign Office clerk inadvertently numbered two pages “120,” caught the mistake, and hand numbered the second “120a,” this is displayed in this microfilm guide as “Pages 1–120a.” Finally, “Pages 1–120[a]” illustrates that the inclusive page range ends with a page that was numbered the same as the preceding page (i.e., two page 120s).
REEL INDEX

Reels 1–94 contain the General Correspondence for Germany Political, 1924–1925. These files are identified by Foreign Office registry number, subject, and inclusive pages. The Foreign Office registry number is composed of four parts: the Foreign Office Department designation (in this case “C” for Central European), the file number, the country designation (in this case “18” for Germany), and the last two digits of the year (“24” for 1924 or “25” for 1925).

INDEX BY SUBJECTS AND NAMES

The following index outlines in broad terms the subjects listed in the preceding Reel Index. The first number following a subject is the reel number, and the number after the colon is the FO registry number. The registry number consists of four parts: the Foreign Office Department designation (in this case “C” for Central European), the file number, the country designation (“18” for Germany), and the last two digits of the year (“24” for 1924, or “25” for 1925).
