SOURCE NOTE

The materials in this microform publication are from Record Group 94, General Records of the Adjutant General's Office, Records relating to Wars, Civil War, 1861–1865, Staff Papers, in the possession of the National Archives, Washington, D.C.

EDITORIAL NOTE

No event in American history directly affected a greater proportion of the nation's population than the Civil War. Three million Americans fought in the war. More than 600,000 sacrificed their lives. The Civil War was not fought by professional soldiers—there were only 16,000 officers and enlisted men in 1861—but by men recruited in their hometowns into regiments or smaller local units. The activities and experiences of volunteer officers provide an important perspective on both the prosecution of the war and the elitism of the Union officer corps.

Papers of Union Staff Officers, 1861–1865 consists of reports and correspondence by and concerning officers serving on the staffs of various departments, corps, divisions, and brigades. The papers reveal a staff officer's daily routine and organization. Documents in this collection include regimental orders, appointments, promotions, transfers and leaves of absence, discharges, orders, and enlistments and reenlistments. The Adjutant General's Office (AGO) was (and still is) the basic service support branch of the Union Army. The AGO was responsible for planning and operating the army's personnel administrative, management, and recruitment operations. The Union Army had almost fifteen hundred general officers during the Civil War. Each general officer was assisted by a number of staff officers in a variety of departments. Staff departments included:

Adjutant General—responsible for orders, correspondence, regulations, personnel records, manuals, recruiting for the regular army, mustering of volunteers, and pension claims.

Chaplain Service—appointed ordained ministers of some Christian denomination to regimental units.

Corps of Engineers—responsible for design and building of fortifications and public works, superintending river crossings, and surveying.

Corps of Topographical Engineers—responsible for reconnaissance, surveying, and map production.

Judge Advocate General—the army’s lawyer, responsible for overseeing all courts-martial.

Inspector General—responsible for monitoring military organizations and their affairs to ensure that they were being conducted according to regulations.

Medical Department—responsible for all hospitals and treatment of the sick and wounded.

Ordnance Department—in charge of all arsenals and armories; furnished all ordnance, ordnance inspection, and ordnance service.

Pay Department—responsible for handling army funds.

Provost Marshal—served as the army’s “policeman” and organized conscription.

Quartermaster Department—responsible for providing quarters and transportation for troops and for storage and transportation of army supplies, uniforms, camp equipage, horses, fuel, forage, and bedding.

Signal Corps—responsible for transmittal of messages by flags, torches, or lights and for maintenance of telegraph equipment.

Subsistence Department—supplied the army’s food.

The documents in this collection are in “jackets.” These “jacketed” documents are tri-folded with an outer cover or “jacket” with identifying information. They were originally arranged chronologically by year, thereunder by initial letter of the soldier’s surname, and thereunder numerically by registration number. LexisNexis has microfilmed all documents, including the jacket, for each year for the period 1861–1865 for the letters “A” through “G.” There are a very small number of documents that may have some legibility problems due to poor storage conditions, age, quality of paper, and/or usage. LexisNexis has filmed the documents in this collection in alphabetical order, rather than chronological order. The remaining letters of the alphabet will be microfilmed in Parts 2 and 3 of Papers of Union Staff Officers.

REEL INDEX

The following is a listing of the materials that compose Papers of Union Staff Officers, 1861–1865, Part 1: “A” through “G.” The four-digit number on the far left is the frame at which documents relating to a particular officer begin. This is followed by the officer’s name and rank, if known, and the years covered in the documents.
