INTRODUCTION

Since President Truman left office in January 1953, the Harry S. Truman Library has conducted an ongoing program to capture recollections of the former President's life and times through interviews with hundreds of his political associates and advisers, family, and friends. These collected transcripts add new detail on Truman's life that cannot be found elsewhere, and are now available in this convenient microfiche collection from UPA.

Like more traditional historical records in public and private libraries and archives, oral histories provide hard data. However, they also provide candid personal perspectives on Truman, as President, politician, friend, and family member.

Interviews are recorded on tape and then transcribed. Transcripts are edited to improve continuity and readability and to ensure accuracy. Editors do not substantively change contents, and remarks remain unexpurgated.

Scope and Content

The Harry S Truman Oral History Collection contains 389 interviews from the holdings of the Harry S. Truman Library which include recollections of Truman's presidency, politics, and personal life.

The collection emphasizes the promulgators of U.S. foreign policy and aid programs during the Truman years. Issues such as the Berlin airlift, the United Nations, Communist containment, and the Nationalist-Red China conflict are remembered and examined by those who held crucial diplomatic and military positions during the Truman administration. Many of Truman's key domestic advisers are also interviewed, recalling the "Fair Deal" economic program, labor unrest, the roots of the modern-day civil rights movement, and many other issues of the Truman years. In addition, interviews with a wide range of political and personal associates provide researchers with a diversity of observations on Truman as a politician, friend, and family man.

The Truman Library continues to conduct interviews, and interviews formerly closed continue to be opened to the public according to the terms of their access agreements. UPA anticipates the possibility of supplementing this collection with additional Harry S Truman Oral Histories as they are opened and we are given permission to reproduce them.

Literary Rights

The documents reproduced in this publication are donated historical materials from various donors in the custody of the Harry S. Truman Library, National Archives and Records Administration. The donor has dedicated his or her literary rights to the public.

UPA claims copyright on the Index and microfiche collection for The Harry S Truman Oral Histories Collection.

The Microfiche Collection

The Harry S Truman Oral Histories Collection is published on 627 silver halide microfiche conforming to ANSI and AIIM standards for archival permanence, designed to last for years of heavy use. The transcripts are typewritten and reproduced in negative polarity at 24:1 reduction. Each fiche is identified by a color-backed, eye-legible header containing the name of the interviewee.

Related Microform Collections

UPA has also published President Harry S Truman's Office Files, 1945-1953, from the holdings of the Truman Library. These confidential files shed considerable light on the internal workings of the Truman presidency. Personal correspondence, confidential memos and reports, and a rich file of diaries and handwritten notes allow researchers to study his reflections on issues ranging from foreign policy and the economy to the First Family and his first few days in the White House. The collection comprises 84 reels of microfilm, issued in five parts with accompanying printed guides.

USER INSTRUCTIONS

The instructions below describe the organization, information elements, and suggested uses of each section of the Index.

File Organization

Interviews are organized in alphabetical order by the name of the interviewee both in the Biographical Summaries section and the companion microfiche collection.

Interviewees: Biographical Summaries

All interviews in the microfiche collection are described individually in alphabetical order in the Biographical Summaries section.

Information given for each interview includes the following items:

- Interviewee—The name of the person(s) interviewed.
- Collation—The number of pages in the interview transcript.
- Date of interview—The date or range of dates on which the interview was conducted.
- Biographical summary—Brief outline of highlights in the career of the interviewee, including an indication of the interviewee's connection with President Truman.

Many interviews contain detailed subject indexes, the presence of which are also noted. In addition, listings of agency and organization descriptors as well as terms used to describe the interviewee's connection to the President are also provided.

Interviewees: Connections with President Truman

This index presents listings of interviewees classed alphabetically according to the connections they had to the life of Harry S Truman.

Entries in this index consist of the following structural elements:

- terms;
- name of the person interviewed;
- “see” and “see also” references.

Terms have been constructed to group individual interviews based on the type of association the interview participants had with the President, and range from “Cabinet members” to “Family and friends.”

See references lead users to the specific terms that have been used in this index; see also references lead users from broader to related or narrower terms.

Interviewees: Agencies and Organizations

This index provides access by the names of agencies and organizations with which interviewees were affiliated during their careers, focusing primarily on their activities during the Truman years.

Entries in this index consist of the following structural elements:

- terms;
- name of the person interviewed;
- “see” and “see also” references.

Terms have been chosen to reflect the prime affiliations of persons interviewed, as indicated in their biographies. Terms include the departments, offices, and other organizations with which interviewees were employed; consultative and deliberative bodies in which they were members; private and public agencies which they represented; and conferences to which they were delegates.

See references lead users to the specific form of agency and organization terms that has been used in this index; see also references lead users from broader to related or narrower agencies and organizations.

Acknowledgements

We are deeply indebted to several individuals at the Harry S. Truman Library, National Archives and Records Administration for their support and assistance. Truman Library Director Benedict K. Zobrist supported and approved the project. Assistant Director George H. Curtis and Senior Archivist Philip D. Lagerquist provided advice and encouragement. Considerable help in determining which oral histories could be filmed and in answering a variety of our questions was ably and graciously provided by Dr. Neil M. Johnson, Truman Library Oral Historian.
