REEL INDEX

Reel 1

Thomas Porcher Ravenel Papers, 1731–1899, Charleston District, South Carolina.

Thomas Porcher Ravenel Papers, 1731–1899, Charleston District, South Carolina, call numbers 12/313–12/318. Records kept by the Ravenel family consist of bound diaries, daybooks, plantation records, estate accounts, and other materials. Earliest accounts pertain to “Pooshee” plantation, St. John’s, Berkeley Parish and begin with Rene Ravenel. Henry Ravenel of “Hanover” plantation held 2,700 acres of the same parish and was credited with 47 slaves in the 1756 tax assessment. The estate of Paul D. Ravenel gave bedsheets to 109 slaves at “Pooshee” during 1841; his son Dr. Henry Ravenel held 115 slaves there in 1860. Much material in the collection relates to lands, plantation management, slave lists, and crops, especially rice and cotton. Personal diaries cover most of the period and include comments on Civil War experiences at home and in the Confederate army. Other material relates to the Black Oak Agricultural Society, South Carolina College [now the University of South Carolina], French Huguenots in South Carolina, and the St. John’s Hunting Club. See also Henry Ravenel Papers.

Thomas Walter Peyre Plantation Journal, 1812–1851, Charleston District, South Carolina

Thomas Walter Peyre Plantation Journal, 1812–1851, Charleston District, South Carolina, call number 34/466. Thomas Walter Peyre of "Spring Grove" plantation, St. John's Parish, kept a careful journal of agricultural experiments, involving cultivation methods for corn, cotton, ground nuts, potatoes, and other crops and the use of various manures, lime, and plaster of paris. Also detailed are the hours allotted slaves for tasks on the plantation. His records show 22¼ "full" hands in 1836 and 25 hands for 1849. Other items entered and indexed in the volume range from the dates of the confinement of pregnant slaves to accounts of company at "Spring Grove," with dates of arrival and departure and the number of horses. Tasks ranged from splitting rails and spinning cotton or wool to cultivating rice and maintaining canals. On frame 0294 are Peyre's estimates for the production of all plantations in middle St. John's Parish during 1846.

Gourdin-Gaillard Family Papers, 1795–1886, Charleston and Georgetown Districts, South Carolina, call numbers 11/164–11/166. The estate of Theodore Gourdin was appraised at over $120,000 in 1826 and contained four plantations: “Murry’s Ferry,” “Red Clay,” “Shoe Seggers” and “Linud’s Ferry,” as well as a house in Pineville and 360 slaves. In 1871 Dr. Robert M. Gourdin was assessed for over 2,500 acres. In 1900, the Gourdin estate laid claim to over 25,000 acres. These records contain extensive slave lists and papers pertaining to rice and cotton cultivation. Among the many fascinating features of this collection are contracts (1865–1866, 1883–1891) made with freedmen by Theodore L. Gourdin and Samuel Gaillard Stoney. Also included are papers regarding the Harriet Porcher Gaillard plantation, “New Hope,” and accounts of Esther Holbrook. See also Samuel Barker Estate Books.

John B. Milliken Plantation Journals, 1853–1889, Charleston District, South Carolina

John B. Milliken Plantation Journals, 1853–1889, Charleston District, South Carolina, call number 34/196. "Mulberry" plantation on Cooper River is the subject of these four volumes and one folder. Volume 1, kept by Thomas Milliken, contains a detailed description of rice and corn cultivation methods, daily tasks, weather, sicknesses of and food consumed by slaves, and the annual produce of the plantation. The two overseers' books contain similar, but less detailed information. The first 46 frames of volume 4 are an account book, apparently of a factor or consignment merchant, from 1863–1864. The subsequent 256 frames are John B. Milliken's detailed records of "Mulberry" from 1877–1899 and include notes on wages of freedmen, crops, and other items. Some unusual entries in these volumes treat a hurricane in August 1885 and the earthquakes of August 31–October, 1886.

Joshua John Ward Plantation Journals, 1800–1869, Georgetown District, South Carolina

Joshua John Ward Plantation Journals, 1800–1869, Georgetown District, South Carolina, call number 34/171. These accounts relate to

"Brookgreen," "Alderly," "Prospect Hill," "Springfield" and "Longwood" plantations in the estate of Colonel Joshua John Ward. The estate totaled 1,130 slaves, the greatest number held by a single owner in the U.S., according to the 1860 census. The earliest records of 1831 are for "Rose Dew" plantation. Rice was the major staple, although substantial numbers of hogs and cattle and volumes of corn were needed to feed so many people. With Colonel Ward's demise in 1853, the estate was managed by his son, Joshua, who apparently made the subsequent entries regarding the various plantations along the PeeDee.
