SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The U.S. State Department Central Files are the definitive source of American diplomatic reporting on political, military, social, and economic developments throughout the world in the twentieth century. This edition consists of the Central Files for Mexico for the period between February 1963 and 1966. The files are arranged according to the State Department Records Classification System, February 1963–1973. The subjects from the classification system included in this edition are AID (Foreign Economic Assistance), CSM (Communism), DEF (Defense Affairs), INT (Intelligence), and POL (Political Affairs and Relations). The files consist of cables and letters sent and received by U.S. diplomats and embassy personnel; reports on meetings between U.S. and foreign government officials and leaders; newspaper clippings and translations from journals and newspapers; transcripts of speeches; and reports and observations on political, military, and social affairs.

This edition of Central Files for Mexico opens with an AID section that details both private and governmental assistance. Many U.S. citizens and groups offered monetary and material assistance to Mexico. Frank Ferree and his Volunteer Border Relief Program, for example, are specifically highlighted in the collection. The collection contains correspondence from Ferree and others to the U.S. government as well as newspaper articles detailing the Volunteer Border Relief Program’s activities. The largest portion of the AID section deals with the Food for Peace and Alliance for Progress programs. The Food for Peace program was phased out in Mexico during this period due to Mexico’s ability to produce sufficient agricultural commodities on its own and due to the desire not to have U.S. imports competing with locally grown agriculture. The material detailing the Alliance for Progress program mainly covers the debate over how effective and pervasive the program was and possible changes needed. A portion of frames detailing the AID program to Mexico, but not contained specifically in the AID section, can be found on Reel 11 beginning with Frame 0532. An official briefing book for the U.S. delegation to Gustavo Diaz Ordaz’s presidential inauguration in 1964 contains a breakdown of the AID program for Mexico for the period between January 1961 and June 1964. The briefing book lists the types and amounts of loans and grants involved in the program.
A brief CSM section follows AID. This section mainly deals with the Mexican reaction to the Sino-Soviet split and Communist activity in Mexico. The Sino-Soviet split created a moment of decision for Mexican pro-Communist parties, and the Mexican parties' debates and eventual split are highlighted in the collection. This section also highlights numerous reports of actual and alleged pro-Castro activity, mainly in the Yucatan area. Rumors, which later proved to be false, circulated that there was even a pro-Castro training base in the Yucatan.

The DEF section mainly highlights port visits by U.S. naval and Coast Guard vessels. Reasons for visits included relaxation, training, salvage operations, diplomacy, and escort duties for various sailing races. Included in the collection are details for U.S. Coast Guard ships such as dimensions and port requirements, the number of crew members and passengers, and the locations and estimated times of port visits. A large number of Spanish-language newspaper clippings highlight several of the port visits and will give researchers visual as well as substantive information about the visits. The newspaper articles showcase many pictures of the vessels, visitors, and ceremonies surrounding the port visits. NASA agreements with Mexico for overflight of space vehicles, salvage operations for space material, and tracking stations in Mexico are also covered in this section. Several NASA-Mexico agreements expired during the period covered and discussions revolved around NASA's need for the agreements to continue and whether or not the Mexican government would be amenable to renewal. Sales of U.S. minesweepers constitute the largest section dealing with defense procurements. The information about minesweepers includes the quantity of vessels to be sold, expected dates of sale, and a debate about the use of the minesweepers. Due to numerous reports of minesweepers being used against U.S. fishers to enforce territorial water limits, sales later became contingent upon not using the vessels in that capacity.

The DEF category contains many documents detailing an interesting discussion on port visits by nuclear-powered U.S. naval vessels and vessels carrying nuclear weapons. Mexico was deeply involved in the Latin American Denuclearized Zone talks and therefore banned nuclear-powered U.S. naval vessels from visiting Mexican ports. This section also covers the discussion about the difference between nuclear-powered vessels and vessels only carrying nuclear weapons. Mexico banned both types of vessels because nuclear-powered vessels were considered too risky, and vessels carrying nuclear weapons were considered to be transporting nuclear material. The U.S. government argued that nuclear ordnance was vital to each vessel's operations and therefore did not constitute transport of nuclear material. Various requests for military supplies and ordnance will give researchers an idea of the needs of the Mexican military.
The INT section that follows DEF is very brief and covers a review of foreign publications operating in Mexico. The review revealed virtually no foreign publications operating. The strength of various Communist/socialist parties in Mexico is also briefly covered.

Following the INT section is the largest section of the collection, Political Affairs and Relations (POL). The POL section opens with several general and weekly reports. These documents show that Mexicans seemed to have a deep interest in U.S. civil rights issues. The weekly reports on Reel 3, for example, contain mention of matters relating to the U.S. civil rights struggle in nearly every “psychological” section. Most of the reports and statistics from local/state areas contain information on government changes, elections, and matters of local interest, including how locals reacted to outside events. A large number of weekly reports have been withdrawn for national security purposes; however, researchers will still find plenty of summaries and analyses of foreign and domestic developments in the remaining weekly reports. Mexican President Gustavo Díaz Ordaz’s visit to Central America is covered in this section and includes copies of joint communiqués issued by Díaz Ordaz and his Central American counterparts. The communiqués and reports from his visits in Guatemala and Nicaragua are in Spanish and will give researchers valuable insight into the talks. Also for interested researchers, Spanish booklets of talks at the National Assembly of the Institutional Revolutionary Party (PRI) in April 1965 are a prominent part of the Political Parties section on Reel 10.

The largest portion of the POL section details settlement of the dispute over the Chamizal region in El Paso, Texas, and Ciudad Juarez, Chihuahua. Topics covered include the history of the dispute, engineering implications and reports for the new river channel, land claims and ownership rights for American and Mexican citizens, texts and revisions of the proposed convention, and reactions to the settlement. A portion of the reaction centered on disputed land appraisals and finding suitable replacement lots and/or homes. The collection contains seven detailed reports discussing locations and amounts of replacement housing for specific homeowners who expressed difficulty in finding suitable housing. In addition to the major topics involved in the Chamizal settlement, the collection contains documents relating to smaller issues such as buses and streetcars, bridges, highways, parks, school locations, and various debates and concerns raised by individual residents.

The salt content of Colorado River waters delivered to Mexico and the possible implications for U.S.-Mexico relations constitutes another major portion of the POL section. Various attempts to reduce salinity are discussed as well as a project to divert hypersaline waters around the Mexicali area in Baja California. Reel 7 beginning with Frame 0099 covers the origin of the salt problem due to the Welton-Mohawk irrigation project in Arizona beginning operations in 1961. Later reels covering the salt problem contain discussions of Mexican agrarian reactions to a perceived lack of response by the United States. Fears existed that a prolonged solution to the salinity question would not only sour U.S.-Mexico relations but also allow Communists to gain an inroad with agrarian groups in the Mexicali valley.

This edition of the U.S. State Department Central Files contains valuable information for researchers on the progress made in U.S.-Mexico relations during the period covered. The Chamizal settlement effectively removed a century-old thorn from relations between the countries and created an atmosphere of greater understanding and respect. The collection is also valuable to researchers for its in-depth coverage of growing Cuban influence, agrarian and rural unrest, and the need for more concrete economic ties with Central American countries.

SOURCE NOTE

Microfilmed from the holdings of the National Archives, College Park, Maryland, Record Group 59: Records of the Department of State, Central Foreign Policy Files, Subject-Numeric Files, February 1963–1966. The Subject-Numeric File categories included in this microfilm publication are Economic, Political, and Defense. The specific subject categories are AID (all types of aid), CSM (Communism), DEF (Defense), INT (Intelligence), and POL (Political Affairs and Relations).

EDITORIAL NOTE

The Subject-Numeric Files for February 1963 through July 1973 are arranged by subject-numeric categories, not by country. Therefore, some file folders will contain multiple subject categories. In addition, some folders will have more than one country represented by a single subject category.

LexisNexis has microfilmed all available documents relating to the subject categories listed above for the State Department’s country designation for Mexico. Only exact duplicates have been excluded. In addition to the documents, LexisNexis has filmed file folders when possible, and has microfilmed the documents as they are arranged at the National Archives. A small number of Document Withdrawal Sheets exist in the files and have been filmed. Withdrawal sheets itemize documents that have been withdrawn from the files by the National Archives staff for national security reasons. Withdrawal sheets note as much pertinent information as possible such as the date of the document, the sender and recipient, and the subject of the withdrawn item.
Essential to the effective administration of the State Department and its overseas posts is the management of records. In keeping with the State Department’s program to improve and modernize its administrative processes, the department developed a new comprehensive records classification system in February–March 1963 (used until July 1973).

This new uniform file system enabled users to file and find material rapidly—the usefulness of recorded information being largely dependent upon the logical arrangement of records. The new system applied to both official and working files.

The new system was based on several years of research and embodied many substantial contributions made by departmental and overseas personnel. An effort had been made to provide sufficient flexibility and subject matter coverage to meet the needs of offices and posts both large and small.

A. PURPOSE AND SCOPE
The new Records Classification System embodied a uniform official file system to be used throughout the department and its overseas posts. It was intended for use by operating offices as well as by departmental and post central files operations. The new system did not apply to certain types of case files, however, such as official personnel files, security investigative files, voucher files, and so forth. Offices continued to maintain chronological files where necessary or desirable.

B. ARRANGEMENT AND CONTENT

1. Subject File Outlines
The attached file outlines [provided by LexisNexis beginning on page xvii] comprise the new file system. They were arranged within seven broad subject matter areas (known earlier as classes), with each including specific subdivisions of related secondary and tertiary code symbols.
2. Special Instructions

   a. International Organizations and Conferences
   This system provided a special method for handling records accumulated in large quantities by offices that were primarily interested in a specific organization or conference rather than in the subject matter with which it dealt. Use of this special feature of the new file system afforded such offices a method for organizing this type of record material to meet their own reference needs within the framework of the new system. It proved of particular use to the Bureau of International Organization Affairs and to United States Missions to international organizations, such as the U.S. United Nations Delegation.

   b. Commercial Officers
   This instruction to the system was prepared in cooperation with the Department of Commerce for the special guidance of commercial officers in their use of the new file system. It provided for pre-coding of commercial-economic reports with the appropriate subject matter code symbols.

   c. Peace Corps Representatives
   This instruction to the system was prepared in cooperation with the Peace Corps for the guidance of its field representatives in records organization and maintenance. It prescribed the use of the appropriate administrative subject outlines for Peace Corps records administration.

   d. U.S. Information Service (USIS)
   Special subject designations were developed in cooperation with the U.S. Information Agency for use by those posts at which USIS files were maintained by the post’s Central Records Unit. These designations were included in the Culture & Information subject outline.

C. TYPE OF SYSTEM

1. Subject-Numeric System
The new uniform file system was of the subject-numeric type. It was selected because of the flexibility that it provided for expansion purposes and the simplicity of file designations for marking purposes. A mnemonic symbol was selected for each of the fifty-five primary subjects for which file outlines had been developed. These symbols ranged from one to four letters in length and had been chosen because of their meaning or obvious relationship to the subject matter for which they stood. In some cases the symbol was identical with an office symbol (e.g., PPT for Passports & Citizenship, AV for Aviation (Civil)). In other cases the key letters in the primary subject constituted the symbol (e.g., CON for Consular Affairs (General), REF for Refugees & Migration, AGR for Agriculture (General)).

While many small offices used the primary subjects alone, larger offices required further breakdowns of the primary subjects for more detailed subject matter coverage. Simple serial numbers were assigned to subject breakdowns at both the secondary and tertiary level. A paper relating to the subject of agricultural production in general, for example, was classified AGR 12; a paper dealing with technological advances in agricultural production was AGR 12-1. The most detailed subdivision contained no more than four digits, making for a relatively simple file designation. A Sample Reel Index entry with Subject-Numeric Codes is on page xxix.

Subject-Numeric Symbol

Primary Subject—Finance —— FN 6-1 —— Tertiary Subject—Loans
| Secondary Subject—Domestic

2. Use of Identical Numbers for Similar Subject
As an additional aid, the same number was assigned to similar secondary and tertiary subjects appearing in different subject file outlines. In most outlines the first five secondary subjects were standard (e.g., General Policy, Plans, and Programs; General Reports and Statistics; Organizations and Conferences; Agreements and Treaties; and Laws and Regulations). This same principle was applied to other similar or related subjects (e.g., Communist Bloc activities in aid, trade, and educational and cultural fields were assigned a “6” number—AID 6, FT 6, EDU 6, respectively; production and consumption was assigned a “12” number in the various industry outlines—AGR 12, INCO 12, PET 12).

3. Expansion of Existing Subjects
While no attempt was made to provide breakdowns for subject matter beyond the tertiary level, there were cases in which an office might want or need to subdivide a secondary or tertiary subject alphabetically by name, geographic location, or other appropriate breakdown. Papers relating to visits by foreign dignitaries, for example, were subdivided by name (e.g., POL 7 Visits—Adenauer); papers relating to a trade fair by location (e.g., TP 8 Fairs—Moscow); or papers relating to a thermal power project by type (e.g., FSE 12 Electric Power—Thermal).
D. SPECIAL FEATURES

1. Flexibility
Flexibility was an important feature of the uniform file system. The new system embodied an unusual amount of flexibility by providing users with several methods of arranging material according to their specific requirements. Three important areas of choice are indicated below:

   a. Subject vs. Geographic Arrangement
   Within each subject file outline, where appropriate, alternative ways of arranging material by subject or area/country were possible. An office interested only in a specific subject without regard to country selected the method of arrangement described above. An office that was primarily interested in specific subject matter but with a secondary concern for a geographic area or country selected the method described in Instruction “C” (Type of System). A geographic bureau or other office primarily concerned with a specific country used the method of arranging first by country and thereunder by subject described in Instruction “B” (Arrangement and Content).

   b. Treatment of International Organizations and Conferences
   Most offices accumulated a varying amount of material on international organizations and conferences in which the U.S. government was represented or participated. The interests of each office and its responsibility for international organization and conference activities determined the amount of record material that it accumulated and the method by which it arranged material to meet user needs.

       An office that had a limited interest in such organizations and conferences and accumulated a relatively small quantity of papers probably found the “3” (Organizations and Conferences) classification within the appropriate subject outline adequate. An office that had a major interest in and responsibility for an organization, such as the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD), or the World Health Organization (WHO), however, adopted the method of arrangement described in Instruction “D” (Special Features). Under this arrangement a special subject file by title of organization was set up under the appropriate subject outline, using any of the secondary or tertiary breakdowns as necessary.

The Bureau of International Organization Affairs, special missions to international organizations, and other offices that accumulated a large volume of material on a specific organization or conference used the special instruction method of arrangement. This instruction contained a standard list of administrative subjects common to international organizations and conferences. It also provided a unique method of arranging substantive program material relating to the specific organization or conference by selecting appropriate subjects, permitting an organizational approach within the framework of a uniform subject system.

c. Treatment of Industries and Commodities
Because of the importance of the commercial-economic reporting program, special attention was given to the treatment of industries and commodities under the new file system. Specific subject outlines were developed for the most significant industries, such as Agriculture (General), Fuels & Energy, Petroleum, Telecommunications, and Transportation. With the exception of Agriculture (General), these industry outlines covered the related commodities and products as well.

To take care of the large number of other industries, commodities, products, and specific agricultural crops, an alphabetical guide was developed as an adjunct to the Industries & Commodities (General) outline. This list, referred to as INCO (specific), provided offices with a simple method of filing materials on specific commodities, regardless of whether they were in their natural or manufactured state.

Instructions preceding the alphabetical listing offered users a choice of methods of arrangement within the list. One office may have preferred to group all minerals and metals together, for example, while another office may have found it preferable to file by the specific mineral or metal.

2. Detailed Instructions (Miscellaneous)
In addition to the instructions above, alternative methods of arrangement, detailed statements, or explanations of the coverage of specific secondary and tertiary breakdowns of the primary subject were provided on an ad hoc basis. Specific cross-references to related subject matter within the same or in other outlines were also indicated. Classifiers found these instructions useful in determining proper file designations, particularly in the case of subject matter that may not have been familiar to them.
3. Country Symbols
A list of standard country abbreviations was used for coding papers relating to specific countries. See page xix for list.

SAMPLE REEL INDEX ENTRIES

Entries in the Reel Index refer to specific documents within Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files, Mexico, February 1963–1966. The documents are arranged by the Subject File Outlines noted in the “State Department Records Classification System, February 1963–July 1973,” on page xi. In order to improve access to some subject categories, LexisNexis has included selected “major topics” (enclosed in brackets) on the line below the subject description. In addition, for categories that are over one hundred pages, LexisNexis has subdivided these groups by month and year.

The four-digit number on the far left represents the frame number at which a particular Subject-Numeric Classification begins. This is followed the Subject-Numeric symbol, a country code, and an explanation of the Subject-Numeric Classification. The sample below provides a description of the arrangement of the information in this guide.

REEL INDEX

Entries in this index refer to specific documents within Confidential U.S. State Department Central Files, Mexico, February 1963–1966, Part 1: Political, Governmental, and National Defense Affairs. These documents are arranged by the Subject File Outlines noted in the “State Department Records Classification System, February 1963–July 1973,” on page xi. See the Sample Subject File and Reel Index entries highlighted on page xxix for a description of the arrangement of the information in this guide. For some subjects, LexisNexis has included additional topics (enclosed in brackets) following the subject description. In addition, for those subjects numbering more than one hundred pages, LexisNexis has subdivided these groupings chronologically by month and year.

LexisNexis has filmed these documents as they are filed at the National Archives. In some instances, there are documents that appear to have been misclassified by the Department of State. LexisNexis has retained the original subject-numeric symbol and, within brackets, enclosed a different subject-numeric symbol and its accompanying subject citation. LexisNexis has microfilmed the documents as they are arranged in the original collection, even when it is apparent that a document has been misfiled.

Many reel index entries include country abbreviations. A Country Abbreviations list can be found on page xxxi of this guide.
