Put the LexisNexis Congressional Hearings Digital Collection to work for you

Delivered through the LexisNexis Congressional platform or as a stand-alone product, our interface makes it easy to search the collection and find exactly what you need.

Welcome to the world of Congressional hearings.

Our vision

The LexisNexis Congressional Hearings Digital Collection is part of an ongoing commitment by LexisNexis to build a complete, easy-to-use repository of Congressional information. Ultimately, we hope to create a single, unified information service that provides value-added indexing and full-text access to Congressional content from 1789 to the present. Digitizing the U.S. Serial Set was our first step toward realizing that goal. Creating the LexisNexis Congressional Research Digital Collection and redesigning LexisNexis Congressional followed.

Making the LexisNexis Congressional Hearings Digital Collection available is our next step. It has long been the policy of Congress to make hearings open to the public whenever possible. Through the vision of LexisNexis, you are now invited to attend.

The next steps are easy ...

Choose your search option
You begin by selecting the type of search you want to conduct. The LexisNexis Congressional Hearings Digital Collection gives you three options:

• Basic Search
• Advanced Search
• Search by Number

As an experienced researcher, you click on the Advanced Search option. The default screen selects all document types, and allows you to limit your search by date or Congress.

Make your search broad or narrow
You enter your search terms: Voting Rights Act. Because you want to understand the debate surrounding civil rights policy over time, you limit your search to Hearings in the Search Within field. Then you expand the date range to search All Available Dates, and receive your results in seconds.

Review your results list
Once you receive your citations list, you can use it as is or select from the following alternate views:

• Expanded, presenting the citation list with the instances in which the search terms were found highlighted below
• KWIC (keywords-in-context), presenting an abbreviated form of the search terms
