First Quarter 2010

Welcome to ...

LexisNexis® Corporate Information Professional Update!

This complimentary, quarterly newsletter is designed just for you—"power users" in businesses of all kinds, from competitive intelligence specialists to corporate librarians. Update gives you details on nexis.com® (and some lexis.com®) resources and/or shows you how you can use them to help solve information issues facing your business.

Plus, check the article archive for topics of interest. Back issues as well as other corporate information professional resources are available at <http://law.lexisnexis.com/infopro/Corporate-InfoPro-Resources>

In this issue:

You're Invited—Right into the Competition's Board Rooms

FD (Fair Disclosure) Wire at nexis.com offers you transcripts of analysts' calls with the executives of companies on the S&P 500, the Nasdaq 100 and the Russell 2,000. LexisNexis® Corporate Solutions Specialist Karen E. Gray shows what you can glean.

Authoritative Content = Blogs Vetted for Quality
(And Now ... Side-by-Side Videos and Transcripts)

Newstex President Larry Schwartz says bloggers must pass 54 quality checks to join the Newstex® blog collection. And Newstex—and nexis.com—have expanded into authoritative video reports.

Presto! Paper Goes Digital—and Your Facts Become Useable Knowledge

Did you know ... LexisNexis Digital Asset Management can digitize printed materials—even legacy data? But, notes David Darst, Director of Digital Initiatives at RTIS (a LexisNexis company), the real value is the precision retrieval power that comes with it.

Advanced Public Records Searching:
15 Search Strategies for Uncovering Hidden Facts

Precision searching ... That's what you do best. The various new searching options—forms as well as terms and connectors—available via LexisNexis Public Records allow you to "slice and dice" records like never before.

You're Invited—Right into the Competition's Board Rooms

by Karen E. Gray, LexisNexis Corporate Solutions Specialist based in the Dallas area
(You can reach Karen at karen.gray@lexisnexis.com)

FD (Fair Disclosure) Wire at nexis.com offers you transcripts of analysts' calls with the executives of publicly traded companies—including those on the S&P 500, the Nasdaq 100 and the Russell 2,000. These conference calls occur shortly after the company's quarterly earnings are released. (Coverage in this resource goes back to April 2001 if you need a historical perspective as well.)

So what competitive intelligence can you glean from FD Wire?
Take a look. In one transcript, you can tap into:

- Candid Conversations with the Top Brass: It's an open invitation to executive discussions.

For example: The chairman and CEO states, "We very jealously guard our balance sheet. We are the only company in our space with an A credit rating and we have $2.4 billion in cash and marketable securities and absolutely no debt."

- Future Plan Possibilities: FD Wire serves as a road map to expansion plans, strategy and development.

For example: The CEO continues, "Everybody has seen the news on ... continued troop buildup in Afghanistan. We were awarded the northern half of that ..."

- What Management is Watching!

For example: The CEO adds, "... when there is some certainty in this market, we will see take off. We are a strong believer in the nuclear renaissance. We believe that in the 2012 timeframe a number of companies, certainly including ourselves, will be putting revenue into backlog on awards for nuclear power plants."

- Executive Changes—and an Inside Look at the Org Chart: Promotions and executive changes are often spotlighted in news; however FD Wire references which business groups actually report to the executive named on the call, allowing competitors, market analysts—or anyone interested in the corporate structure—a glance at the organizational chart, absent a formal copy. Executive motion could mean a change in corporate direction and strategy.

Tips for Researching FD (Fair Disclosure) Wire

Search the full text—of course! Plus these document segments can help you home in on specific:

COMPANIES:

Use the COMPANY or TICKER segment, e.g.,

ENTER: ticker(eslr)

Or

*ENTER: company(abcco) AND repay! /10 TARP

INDUSTRIES:

Use the INDUSTRY segment, e.g., find the most recent calls.

ENTER: industry(engineering services) AND date aft 8/2009

EXECUTIVES:

Use the PERSON segment, e.g.,

ENTER: person(crispin /3 davis)

SUBJECTS:

Use LexisNexis SmartIndexing Technology™ indexing terms in your search with the SUBJECT segment, e.g.,

ENTER: subject(solar power)

For example: Then the CEO says, “So with that, I’m going to turn the podium over to Bill Smith. Bill, many of you may know, was just announced as our Chief Operating Officer. And with that, all of the P&L business groups report directly to Bill, so I’m going to give him the opportunity to talk about our forward-looking business.”*

- Pending Projects/Production Cycle: Strategy and Business Development have project cycles that are sometimes hard to pin down. Knowing what is in “the works” and understanding a company’s production cycle or sales cycle is key to understanding where the resources are allocated.

For example: The COO says, “The gestation period on many of these large infrastructure programs can take two or three years to come in and slipping quarter-over-quarter is not uncommon, but we have several projects pending right now.”

- Company Direction/Focus: Trending is a key element to analysts who watch the market. For unbiased slants to actionable efforts, FD Wire provides insight into a company’s direction and focus.

For example: The COO continues, “I think you can note that (company) announced that they are to close several of their coal-fired plants and replace (them) with hopefully nuclear and certainly with gas. We see that as a trend. We are certainly positioned for both the gas and the nuclear renaissance that we [are here]. Specifically our renewable strategy is paying dividends both in wind and solar and we see that as a growing business as we go into the out years.”

- Summary of Market Position: Is diversification part of their strategy? What spaces do they lead?

For example: The COO states: “Diversification is playing well for us. You see a decline in oil and gas, but you see an up-tick in government and mining as an example. So that diversity will continue to play as part of our end market strategy.”

- Business Alliances: Knowing who your competitors are closely aligned with helps you understand their business. Competitive Intelligence on these partnerships is key to any strategy and/or development department.

For example: “We are the largest player in that arena. We do a lot—as I said, a lot of the front ends. We’re involved very heavily with ABCTech ... and it’s a market that we think is going to be a real positive one for us as we go through 2010.”*

Authoritative Content = Blogs Vetted for Quality (And Now ... Side-by-Side Videos and Transcripts)

LexisNexis Corporate Information Professional Update thanks Larry Schwartz, President of Newstex, for his contributions to this article.

Introducing Video on Demand: The “New ‘Vid’ on the Block”

In May 2009, LexisNexis became the first distributor for Newstex Video on Demand. With this integrated resource, information professionals can search for video transcripts as easily as they would look for blog content or other news sources online.

Here’s how:

1. Select Newstex Video on Demand as your source.
2. Enter search terms, e.g., ENTER: patent /10 infring!
3. Choose a title from displayed results.

But the features don’t end there.

The method Newstex uses to process the videos in real time simultaneously produces a transcript that’s full text and tagged with metadata. One click on a URL link within a transcript is all it takes for you to view the corresponding video. Using the Newstex video player side-by-side with the transcript lets you easily match displayed key terms that are highlighted with a particular moment shown in the video. (See below.)

Topics for video content include news, business, independent video and audio producers such as Johnson & Johnson, the United States Chamber of Commerce, Zack’s Investments, SBTV.com and WineLibrary.tv.

The screenshot displays the Market News Video website interface. At the top, there are navigation links for 'Daily Dividends', 'Economic News', 'Large Caps', 'Market Movers', 'Upgrades/Downgrades', 'Weekly Market Wrap', and 'Week Ahead Report'. Below these are search and navigation tools including 'Enter symbol', 'Get Quote & Videos', '100 FREE TRADES', 'Symbol Lookup', 'Enter search term', 'Search Videos', and 'Email Alerts'.

The main content area features a video player on the left showing a woman speaking, with a 'Boston Scientific' logo overlaid. To the right of the video player is a transcript titled 'Boston Scientific to Pay Johnson & Johnson $1.73B Settlement Monday, February 1, 1:16 PM ET'. The transcript text reads: 'Johnson & Johnson (NYSE:JNJ) and Boston Scientific (NYSE:BSX) said today that they have agreed on a settlement in three stent-related patent disputes. Boston Scientific will pay a total of $1.73 billion to settle suits in which Johnson & Johnson alleged patent infringement on various stent products. Boston Scientific will pay $1 billion now, and another $725 million next January. Boston Scientific's CEO noted that his company has significantly reduced its volume of outstanding litigation in the past year, and today's settlement is in the best interest of the company and its shareholders.'

On the right side of the page, there is an advertisement for 'Fisher Investments' titled 'To investors who want to retire comfortably.' Below the advertisement is a table of stock prices:

Symbol	Price	Chg	% Chg	Volume	Mkt Cap
JNJ	64.16	0.18	0.28%	231.85K	177.02B
BSX	7.76	0.01	0.13%	1.38M	11.72B

At the bottom of the page, there are logos for 'AMERITRADE', 'BARRON'S', 'FREE HELLMAN TradeStation Securities', and 'iz Kid Make'.

Mining the Blogosphere for Company Updates

“Knowledge is power,” says Larry Schwartz, President of Newstex. It’s the business tenet at the center of most Competitive Intelligence departments and Information Centers. “Since corporations need to know what’s being said about them and their competitors, Newstex provides the opportunity to analyze and react first: Make a well-informed decision and take action as soon as possible.”

That means reaching into the blogosphere for split-second updates as well as digging into the past. Newstex resources at nexis.com makes both possible.

Schwartz credits LexisNexis, the first company to license Newstex blogs, with having the vision to see customer advantages. Since 2006, when the alliance was formed, the LexisNexis services has offered its customers access to full-text news from an increasing number of licensed sources through the Authoritative Content delivered from Newstex.

Quantity—and Quality

Currently more than 4,000 bloggers syndicate their materials through Newstex. That’s about 4,000 blogs available through nexis.com. And new authors are added each month. Schwartz says blog content is gathered from news organization and corporate blogs, such as Google™ blogs and the Dallas Morning Newspaper blogs, as well as from independent experts and thought leaders.

But before a blog feed is approved to become part of Newstex Authoritative Content, each blog must undergo a detailed vetting process—54 different metrics. Schwartz notes that vetting criteria includes subject matter expertise and quality of posts as well as frequency of posts.

The Newstex Blog Acquisition Team (BAT) is comprised of topic experts who research and sign new blogs. Once a blog is identified (many suggestions come from subscribers), it is reviewed by the editorial team, who are typically journalists and librarians specializing in various fields. Editors’ fields of expertise determine who is assigned to the subject matter, and if an editor deems a blog does not meet one of the 54 metrics, then that blog is rejected. If approved, the blog is collected by Newstex, and LexisNexis makes the aggregated content available to customers.

Twitter®, another means for getting the latest news, is also part of the Newstex Authoritative Content offering. Twitter news sources are news, business, political and independent publishers. Also find Twitter feeds from members of the Canadian Parliament, United States federal agencies, and senators and congressmen commenting about activities on The Hill.

Three Times Daily—and Four Years of Coverage

Newstex blogs at nexis.com are updated three times every day—and new full-text posts are online shortly after the 10 A.M., 4 P.M. and 10 P.M. update processes.

And as relevant as late-breaking news may be, when historical reference is needed, researchers can retrieve insights with one search. Thus far, LexisNexis maintains a four-year collection of blog posts and one-year collection for tweets.

LexisNexis Corporate Information Professional Update thanks David Darst, Director of Digital Initiatives at RTIS (a LexisNexis company), for his contributions to this article. You can reach David at david.darst@lexisnexis.com

LexisNexis Digital Asset Management (D.A.M.) is all about text—but it offers so much more than just digitizing it.

There are a lot of digitization options out there and hundreds of search engines, but what's unique about LexisNexis D.A.M. is that once your material is transformed from paper to digital, or from legacy digital to digital, D.A.M. helps you maximize data usage so you quickly get more precise results.

Why Convert?

Documents converted via LexisNexis Digital Asset Management resources give your company a fast, convenient way to retrieve all of your corporate data—and much more!

- Consistent, accurate digital representation is created from your data and preserved in a format that meets the highest standards for quality, usability and longevity.
- Sophisticated metadata and linking technologies give you a systematic way to classify knowledge and to relate to other relevant information.
- LexisNexis taxonomies and categorization rules can be applied to your own corporate data and to business, news and legal content, and public records data at lexis.com[®] that links between and among internal and external content for more robust answer set analyses.
- Timely benefits of information life cycles in a workflow environment keep processes moving forward. For example, a patent contractor completes a patent application and allows the U.S. Patent Office to view and subsequently re-view the application as it's amended and refined until, ultimately, the application is approved.

Search and Storage Options: Accessibility x 2

Once your material is digitized, your organization can choose from three options to store and retrieve your data.

1. A private database, built as a series of libraries, sits on a platform. A customized user interface, that requires an ID and password, lets you enter the private database. Once there, algorithmic programming, like that used for search functionality at lexis.com, helps you get the most from your digital documents through indexing and taxonomy technologies.

Advanced Public Records Searching: 15 Search Strategies for Uncovering Hidden Facts

Precision searching ... that's what you do best. The various searching options—forms as well as terms and connectors—available via LexisNexis Public Records allow you to:

(More tips for researching LexisNexis Public Records are included in Update coverage from November 2008.)

1. Find a range of addresses—even a city block—in one search
ENTER: 300,399 elm in the street address field. That will find addresses in that range, and records with that address range should appear first in your results, followed by other records that meet search criteria, including other addresses on that street.
2. Relax! Even if you enter the wrong zip code, city—and even state—you can still find the right address
That's because with many of the major “finder forms”—Comprehensive Person Report, Comprehensive Location Report, Find a Person (Nationwide) and Statewide Public Records search—you automatically search a 30-mile radius around the address you enter, even across state lines. Change that default—choose from 0 to 100 miles—with the Radius field on these forms.
3. Identify a phone number as cellular or unpublished (even if no one is associated with that number)
Go to the Alternate Phone Number form—and get access to more than 150 million phone numbers, including 56 million cellular numbers just added. Search by name, address—or phone number alone. Results are identified as possibly cellular or dedicated access (land line). Even if no person is associated with the phone number, the phone company is also identified so you can investigate further. By the way, the Phone Lookup Report also shows unpublished and dedicated-access land lines. And the Canadian Phone Number search form taps into more than 12 million Canadian records covering all 10 provinces and three territories.
4. Reveal the owner of a very small business
The Locate a Business (Nationwide) search form can find the addresses, phone numbers and executives/owners of very small businesses as well as major corporations. LexisNexis Public Records offer more than 900 million business records covering 381 million unique businesses.
5. Search just your results list and further refine your research
Use the Find field on your results screen. Enter search terms in the Find box and search with the terms in your results list, e.g., phone, address, etc. Some sources—those offering Boolean searching—also offer a FOCUS™ feature field so you can search within all documents in your results.
6. Limit your real-property results by sales price—or sale price range. (And there's more!)
Click Terms & Connectors on the Real Property search form. You can search for a specific sales price—or loan, tax or land-value amount. Or use a greater than or lesser than value to find a range of sales prices, land values, loan or tax amounts.
7. Uncover the right company with a FEIN number
Find the Federal Employer Identification Number with the Comprehensive Business Report, Locate a Business (Nationwide), the Statewide Public Records Business Search and Corporate Filings search. You can search with this identifier, e.g., 52-1471842, on these search forms as well. Or enter this number in the Find or FOCUS fields on your results screen to refine your results.

Need to find the company's FEIN number? Just go to the FEIN Search form.

8. Search all available public records from the state—in one search

That's what the Statewide Public Records Person Search and the Statewide Public Records Business Search do.

9. Locate employment information

Employment Locator search puts you in touch with more than one billion records—current and/or past employment records—and links 135 million unique individuals to businesses nationwide. (This is not an all-inclusive resource with consistent, nationwide coverage, but it can be helpful in locating some hard-to-find employment information.)

10. Pinpoint a registered agent

Select the Corporation Filings form and click the Find Registered Agents box. Then fill in the information you know. (Or use terms and connectors with the REGIS AGENT segment.)

11. Use a prior address to find a person's current whereabouts

Don't know your targeted individual's current address? If you have a prior address—even just a state—add it to the Comprehensive Person Report, Locate a Person (Nationwide) or Statewide Public Records Person Search form in the previous address fields. Enter any other information you know about the person.

12. Expand your name results to include variations—or compress your results to a certain spelling

Your choice. The person name fields of many of the public records search forms include spelling variation/nickname options. On the Comprehensive Person Report, Locate a Person (Nationwide) or Statewide Public Records Person Search forms, you can also use the Strict Search box. Check it and your results will be limited to the name form you entered.

13. Enter a nickname and find the proper name

Click this box on the Comprehensive Person Report, Locate a Person (Nationwide) or Statewide Public Records Person Search forms and you can find an individual with a nickname—even if the nickname is not listed on every record. So enter Thomas, click the Find nicknames of first name box and retrieve Thomas, Tom, Tommy, Tommie, Scooter, etc.

14. Common name? Narrow with previous address or state, alias or relative

John Smith? Jane Jones? On the most comprehensive person search forms, you have the option of adding additional information to home in on the right person—details you might know such as aliases, previous addresses and relatives.

15. Filing Jurisdiction—Find it!

On some of the filings search forms—Bankruptcy, Judgments & Liens and Criminal Records—you can limit your search to specific filing jurisdictions, i.e., states.

Round-Up 2009: Sources Added to the LexisNexis Services

More international news coverage ... more blogs and video transcripts ... more trade sources for healthcare, finance and business. In 2009, LexisNexis added thousands of sources to help you get closer to the answer sets your organization seeks.

Take a closer look at 2009!

October through December 2009

July through September 2009

April through June 2009

January through March 2009

Note: Access to, and availability of, your LexisNexis resources is determined by your agreement with LexisNexis. You may not be able to access all of the sources described in this round-up article.

Click a blue source link—and move directly to the source's description at the LexisNexis Directory of Online Sources. Get details on the source, including:

- What it covers
- Update frequency
- Publisher
- Online availability, e.g., is it same day?

And more!

You have two ways to stay updated on new LexisNexis sources throughout 2010:

What's New on the Nexis® Service: Each quarter the Nexis® product specialists review the latest additions with you. You'll find this overview on the LexisNexis InfoPro Web site. (Just select Keeping Current under Corporate InfoPro Resources.)

The LexisNexis Directory of Online Sources: The directory is also available on the LexisNexis InfoPro Web site. It's under general Training & Resources. The directory search form offers lots of search options. For example, search by publication name, publisher, language, update frequency, etc. Even use multiple criteria.

Added to the LexisNexis Services: OCTOBER THROUGH DECEMBER 2009

Discover America's Story, focuses on small-town, rural and local articles and reports on what is happening in-town and in-county while providing a local point of view on bigger issues such as state, regional, national politics and world affairs. The product is rich with articles relevant to geographic locations often under-reported or overlooked by mainstream news coverage, including coverage of natural resources, agriculture, land use, water rights and farming.

The Guide to International Legal Research is an authoritative and comprehensive reference tool for law students and practitioners. Authored annually by The George Washington International Law Review, the Guide is designed to assist both novices and professionals with their international legal research.

Newstex Blogs—Now 4,000 plus! LexisNexis continued to add influential blog content from Newstex to the LexisNexis services. By the end of 2009, LexisNexis offered access to more than 4,000 blogs—full-text posts from across a wide variety of subjects, including Business, Banking & Finance, Entertainment, Government & Politics, Marketing & Advertising, Media & Publishing, Computers & Technology and Medical & Health. (More information on Newstex blogs is available in this issue.)

In the area of healthcare, The Journal of the American Academy of Physician Assistants (JAAPA) supports the ongoing education and advancement of Physician Assistants. This is achieved by publishing current information and research on clinical, health policy and professional issues. Additional U.S. medical materials include The American Journal of Hematology/Oncology (AJHO), providing practicing cancer clinicians with necessary information to provide their patients the best care.

Further expanding healthcare coverage, LexisNexis released six new titles from Haymarket Media GmbH. McKnights Long-Term Care News is a business news magazine serving the institutional long-term care field. It reports on events affecting the delivery of care across the entire long-term care spectrum, ranging from lower-acuity assisted living to the high-acuity skilled nursing setting. McKnight's Assisted Living presents articles and departments that offer assisted living managers strategies to improve operations, based on the regulatory and business changes occurring in the marketplace. Clinical Advisor is a monthly journal for Nurse Practitioners and Physician Assistants in primary care. Renal & Urology News reports news and scientific developments to nephrologists (kidney experts) and urologists. Oncology Nursing News \(ONN\) serves nurses in the area of oncology. Medical Marketing & Media (MMM) offers information and guidance to executives dedicated to the promotion and commercialization of prescription drugs and other medical products and services.

Covering the UK and Europe, 10 new publications from Emap Ltd examine various industries. professionals in the UK with more exclusive news, incisive articles, in-depth analysis of individual councils and local government figures, and essential events, than any other brand in this field. Health Service Journal\(HSJ\) is the UK's leading source of news and information on health management and policy. Targeted at healthcare professionals whose expertise ranges from primary care commissioning to mental health, from policy-making to the front line, HSJ is an unrivalled source of news, analysis and opinion. As the UK's leading, independent resource for nurses, Nursing Times is the professions most significant media brand. Retail Week-EMAP is the UK's leading provider of retail industry news, key retail market reports and data, from across the entire retail sector.

Also in the UK, from Haymarket Media GmbH, DMNews is a trade publication covering the direct, interactive and database marketing businesses.

Broadening coverage in the UK are four new publications from Incisive Media Limited focused on insurance brokers and investment. Professional Broking is the monthly management magazine for insurance brokers. It aims to deliver "Business Intelligence for Broker Managers," by focusing on topics such as the tax implications of green strategies, reviewing the latest employee benefits, and assessing wider economic and business issues. Insurance Age is the must-read magazine for the UK insurance broking community and is the largest circulating monthly magazine for UK insurance brokers. Each month the magazine provides practical and career-relevant news and analysis, product reviews and sector comments designed to help readers stay ahead of the competition. Professional Adviser is the weekly investment magazine for advisers who want to develop their business and deliver the best possible value to their clients. It provides investment news, financial planning and vital analysis for advisers. The premier publication for the investment industry, Investment Week is the weekly magazine for top-tier investment professionals in the UK. Launched in 1995 as Incisive Media's flagship title, Investment Week provides information and inspiration that has enabled the title to win 22 awards in 12 years.

Further complementing LexisNexis financial, corporate and legal coverage, the London Stock Exchange – Board Membership provides information on the board membership of all UK, Irish and FTSE® All Share foreign-incorporated companies with a UK listing, as well as all AIM companies.

From Germany, two new publications from Ullstein GmbH focus on Berlin activities and developments. BM online is the online service of Berliner Morgenpost, one of the most important publications in the German capital. Welt kompakt is a publication dedicated to those readers, who wish to get fast, high-quality information. Welt kompakt's readers are mostly young, well-educated and affluent.

Five new titles from Axel Springer GmbH further expand German coverage. Die ZEIT \(inklusive ZEIT Magazin\) offers a great variety of subjects. It mainly focuses on politics and business; however all other topics significant in Germany are presented as well: culture and science, medicine, society and education, travelling, lifestyle and sports. ZEIT-online is the online news platform of weekly newspaper Die ZEIT. ZEIT Wissen the science magazine of Die ZEIT combines the proven attributes of the ZEIT brand—serious journalism, reliable information, in-depth research—with exciting, high-quality photo journalism. ZEIT CAMPUS is the premier medium for the young elite and combines the strengths of DIE ZEIT with an unconventional and dynamic approach. ZEIT Geschichte is the History Magazine of Die ZEIT. When history becomes relevant, a new issue of ZEIT Geschichte is published focusing on a single historical event, presenting it in a sophisticated but comprehensible way using exclusive texts and the best articles from Die ZEIT. Additional expansion of German coverage is provided by inclusion of WELT ONLINE from Axel Springer AG. WELT ONLINE is a German news portal with one of the highest levels of reach and broadest ranges of content.

From Finland, two new publications. Kauppalehti Oy and Kauppalehti, focusing on business, management and economics, are the major market news providers for Finnish markets.
