

One MORE Reason ...

ALM® sources join the LexisNexis® services May 1: Frequently Asked Questions

Why did LexisNexis negotiate a license for ALM® content?

At LexisNexis we continually strive to provide you and your organization with the most comprehensive content collection possible. By adding ALM content to our resources, we are able to create superior content synergies in a wide array of news and practice areas/industries as well as in a variety of jurisdictions. We now deliver even more of the legal news, practice-area and early-case-assessment content you and your legal professionals require.

How can my organization and I get access to this content?

You will be able to add ALM content to your LexisNexis® subscriptions. Some transactional availability will be offered. Please check with your LexisNexis® account representative. LexisNexis will add ALM sources to the appropriate news, state and area-of-law pages throughout lexis.com®.

What ALM content will be offered through lexis.com, and how does ALM content enhance the existing LexisNexis collection?

ALM sources offered through lexis.com include the full-text content of:

- ALM magazines, state and national newspapers, including
 - National news: The American Lawyer®, The National Law Journal®, Corporate Counsel®, Law Technology News® and more.
 - Regional news: New York Law Journal®, New Jersey Law Journal®, Texas Lawyer®, The Recorder®, The Legal Intelligencer®, Connecticut Law Tribune® and more.
- Practice area/industry treatises, forms and journals.
- Jury verdict and expert witness databases, ALM expert directories and judicial profiles as well as settlement data and publications.
- Trial court opinions, including key content that litigators, in particular, rely on to craft winning strategies for their clients, and that senior law-firm management utilizes to benchmark competitive performance.

Additionally, LexisNexis will be the only third-party provider of ALM news archives (i.e., news dated six months after publication).

The addition of the ALM resources strengthens LexisNexis subscriptions in key jurisdictions and practice areas/industries such as Intellectual Properties, Bankruptcy, Healthcare, Insurance, Employment, Environmental, Antitrust and M&A / Securities.

Will I have access to all available ALM content on May 1, 2011?

The majority of ALM content will be available May 1, 2011—certainly 100 percent of frequently requested publications (including legal blogs), verdicts and settlements, and expert witness content. ALM sources available May 1 will be integrated with other lexis.com news, practice-area and jurisdictional content.

Will I be able to include ALM sources in my current-awareness topics in LexisNexis® Intranet Publisher?

Yes. You will be able to set up a LexisNexis® Alert and add available ALM sources to your LexisNexis Intranet Publisher topics.

How will LexisNexis support my organization through this transition?

We will supply you and your legal professionals with the materials and training you need to come up to speed quickly. Our sales and 24/7 Customer Support teams are already preparing. This librarian package is an example of our commitment to provide materials and support. Plus, a special LexisNexis microsite—www.lexisnexis.com/ALM—has been established as a go-to place for updates and information on this new addition.

