What's New - March 2012

LexisNexis® Publisher Enhancements

We are pleased to announce the latest enhancements to LexisNexis® Publisher. These developments include time-saving features that help you design, manage and distribute valuable information your readers need.

Updates include...

- TOC in E-mail Notification¹
- Expiration Dates to MD5 Tokens
- Disclaimers for E-mails
- Automated Alert option for Reports
- Searching on the Staged & Published Tab
- Enhanced Editorial Tools

TOC in E-mail Notification

Editors are now able to add a table of contents for users in their e-mail notification within LexisNexis® Publisher.

This feature allows user to easily navigate between topics.

¹Email functionality not available to Web Publisher customers.

Why do you need an appeals specialist?

Hall & Evans has litigated more civil appeals in the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals than any other Colorado law firm. Why does this matter?

It matters because trial litigation and appellate litigation are different fields of practice involving different court systems, different rules, and different legal processes.

It matters because the issues that are raised on appeal are often completely different from the issues raised at trial.

It matters because an appeals court panel bases its decision almost exclusively on

Arrow of N.Y. Reports $5.4 Million Profit

American Banker, October 19, 2011 Wednesday

Despite substantial gains in fee income, Arrow Financial Corp. in Glens Falls, N.Y., said Tuesday that its third-quarter profit fell slightly from a year earlier due to weakening demand for home and auto loans and a penalty it incurred for prepaying Federal Home Loan Bank advances.

Bank of America Can't Get Smaller Fast Enough

American Banker, October 19, 2011 Wednesday

Bank of America hasn't lost its status as the country's largest bank so much as escaped it. The reductions in size are considered good for its long-term health. Yet there are few immediate payoffs in an environment in which even its relatively slimmer rivals are struggling. "We are doing everything we can to continue to position the earnings of our company," Chief Executive Brian Moynihan told analysts Tuesday. Bank of America will pursue growth in "very select areas," Moynihan said, but it is "now managing down [staffing] across all areas."

Newsletter templates define the customized look of the newsletter, the topics of interest for its target audience, and the default list of people who will receive it. LexisNexis® Publisher uses the information you define in this newsletter template to build each newsletter issue.

- A text input field containing 'Topic Today' (labeled '2').
- Radio buttons for 'Edit Newsletter Template', 'Delete Newsletter', 'New Newsletter Issue', 'Resend Newsletter Issue', and 'Drafts'.
- Dropdown menus for 'A Newsletter' (selected) for the 'Edit Newsletter Template', 'Delete Newsletter', and 'New Newsletter Issue' options.
- Dropdown menus for '---Newsletter---' and '---Issue---' for the 'Resend Newsletter Issue' option.
- A dropdown menu for 'A Newsletter (Wed, Nov 10, 2010 04:56 PM)' for the 'Drafts' option.
- A red 'Start' button (labeled '3') at the bottom right of the form.

At the bottom of the page, there is a footer with the LexisNexis logo, 'About LexisNexis | Terms & Conditions | Privacy Policy', and 'Copyright © 2010 LexisNexis, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc. All Rights Reserved.'

- 1 Select radio button to the left of New Newsletter Template.
- 2 Type newsletter name.

Â

WASHINGTON - Paul Nash, a former lobbyist and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.'s chief congressional liaison, was named chief of staff at the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency on Monday.

He will now become one of the top aides to new Comptroller of the Currency Thomas Curry, who also hails from the FDIC. Nash is expected to start on May 21.

Technically, Nash succeeds John Walsh, who had been the agency's chief of staff until taking over as acting comptroller in August 2010. The OCC also announced Monday that Walsh will officially retire.

"For six and a half years, John has been a mainstay of the OCC's Executive Committee," said Curry in a press release. "He also admirably served for 18 months as Acting Comptroller during a particularly challenging time for the agency. Since I joined the OCC last
