

Enhanced content collection. Broader insights. Better value.
Introducing Web News on LexisNexis® Publisher.

LexisNexis® Publisher now gives you added insight with the addition of Web News – a collection of key news sources on the web. Add a Web News search to any saved or new topic and retrieve relevant articles and answers from several thousand websites. LexisNexis® Web News sources are selected by LexisNexis editors based on editorial quality, influence and value to our customers.

Adding Web News to existing or new topics is as simple as creating a new search and choosing Web News as the search type.

LexisNexis® Publisher

Topics Administration

New Search

Select Search Type

- LexisNexis Search
- Web feed (includes RSS and Atom feeds)
- WebNews

Search Name *

Project/Client Name Test Add New Project/Client...

Headline & Lead Terms

Search Terms *

Exclude non-business articles (English content only)

Ticker

Date

- Today
- From mm/dd/yyyy
- Previous 1 Days

Index Terms Show

* Required field

Search Cancel

Web News supports all LexisNexis search logic, searches built off index terms and all date parameters.

Web News results show all citation information with the first few words of the article displayed. The headline of each Web News story links automatically to the URL of the original story.

The screenshot displays the LexisNexis Publisher interface. At the top, it shows 'LexisNexis® Publisher' and 'Publisher ID: Inpteam | Org Preferences | Editor Preferences | Customer Service:'. Below this are tabs for 'Topics' and 'Administration'. The search results are for 'Topic: 01/13' and 'View: Split (List and Full Doc)'. The results are categorized into 'Results (896)', 'Staged (0)', 'Published (7)', and 'Deleted (0)'. A list of documents is shown, with the first result selected: '1. Obama Administration Tells Contractors Facing Sequestration to Not Warn Employees About Potential Layoffs'. The document is from 'Forbes Magazine', dated '1 October 2012 Monday', and is 591 words long. The headline is 'Obama Administration Tells Contractors Facing Sequestration to Not Warn Employees About Potential Layoffs'. The text below the headline reads: 'The Obama Administration issued a memorandum ( White House link ) late Friday, instructing Federal contractors that they should not provide WARN Act notice to employees designed to protect "workers, their families, ...'.

The screenshot shows the Forbes article page. The article is by Greg McNeal, Contributor, and is titled 'Obama Administration Tells Contractors Facing Sequestration to Not Warn Employees About Potential Layoffs'. The article is dated 'WASHINGTON | 9/30/2012 @ 11:55PM | 18,206 views'. The article text reads: 'The Obama Administration issued a memorandum (White House link) late Friday, instructing Federal contractors that they should not provide WARN Act notice to employees facing sequestration. The WARN Act is designed to protect "workers, their families, and communities by requiring most'.

Learn More

To learn more about this enhanced content collection, please contact your LexisNexis account representative or call 888-AT-LEXIS.