Every Shepard’s® report includes “Followed by” analysis for your holdings. The more your holding is followed by other cases and courts, the stronger its precedential value. Holdings that are not followed may have less precedential value. KeyCite® and BCiteSM do not have “Followed by” analysis.

The easiest way to see your holdings’ precedential value is the Citing Decisions Grid, another Shepard’s exclusive:

Only Shepard’s® shows you the strongest precedents:

Every Shepard's® report includes “Followed by” analysis for your holdings. The more your holding is followed by other cases and courts, the stronger its precedential value. Holdings that are not followed may have less precedential value. KeyCite® and BCiteSM do not have “Followed by” analysis.

The easiest way to see your holdings’ precedential value is the Citing Decisions Grid, another Shepard’s exclusive:

Only Shepard’s® shows you the strongest precedents:

Every Shepard's® report includes “Followed by” analysis for your holdings. The more your holding is followed by other cases and courts, the stronger its precedential value. Holdings that are not followed may have less precedential value. KeyCite® and BCiteSM do not have “Followed by” analysis.

The easiest way to see your holdings’ precedential value is the Citing Decisions Grid, another Shepard’s exclusive:

Only Shepard’s® shows you the strongest precedents:

Every Shepard's® report includes “Followed by” analysis for your holdings. The more your holding is followed by other cases and courts, the stronger its precedential value. Holdings that are not followed may have less precedential value. KeyCite® and BCiteSM do not have “Followed by” analysis.

The easiest way to see your holdings’ precedential value is the Citing Decisions Grid, another Shepard’s exclusive:

Quickly find additional supporting authority:

“Followed by” analysis, only on Shepard’s, also makes it easy to find additional cases and courts supporting your holding. Use these three simple steps to get a list of cases following yours:

1. Shepardize®: click Shepardize at the top of every case
2. Tab: select the Citing Decisions tab
3. Filter: click Followed by under the Analysis filter

You can also find law reviews, journals and other documents citing your holding using Shepard’s.

1. Shepardize: click Shepardize at the top of every case
2. Tab: select the Citing Law Reviews, Treatises... tab
3. Filter: click Law Reviews under the Content filter
Spot weaknesses in your opponent’s arguments:

You need to be able to spot the holes in your opponent’s arguments, and Shepard’s makes it easy with the Table of Authorities tab and the Appellate History Map.

Shepard’s Table of Authorities shows if a case supporting a holding your opponent is relying on has received negative analysis. For example, your opponent cites 860 F.2d 834 to support an argument. Use these steps to check the value of the case:

1. Shepardize®: click Shepardize at the top of 860 F.2d 834
2. Tab: select the Table of Authorities tab
3. Filter: click Following under the Analysis filter

Indicates that 860 F.2d 834 is following a holding from the Trans World case.

Indicates that a holding from the Trans World case may have negative analysis by other courts.

Indicates that the holding 860 F.2d 834 is following has significant discussion in the Trans World case.

Shepard’s Appellate History Map shows you if a case supporting your opponent’s argument has been Reversed by a higher court. After Shepardizing™ your opponent’s case click Map under the Appellate History tab.

You can see that your opponent is relying on a case that was Reversed by the United States Supreme Court.