In Case You Missed it—Monitoring News Coverage: When It Comes to Online Tools, You Get What You Pay For, a LexisNexis® White Paper

White paper highlights include:

- Business professionals have come to rely on search engines and free “news alerts” services to monitor news coverage about their company, industry and competitors.
- The truth is that search engines do not index all of the news content on the Web, and therefore are not capturing everything in their alerts. This lack of coverage is getting worse daily as news publishers are rapidly moving their content behind paywalls.
- New legislation and industry organizations worldwide are also moving to protect the economic value of news content from open-Web searches.
- The most effective way for business professionals to monitor news content online is to invest in a paid service that aggregates licensed news content, supplementing what is available on the open Web.

LexisNexis® Acquires WorldCompliance®, Leading Provider of Global Anti-Money Laundering and Compliance Solutions

Reed Elsevier, the parent company of LexisNexis® Risk Solutions, announced it has acquired the remaining 55 percent of WorldCompliance to further its commitment to helping organizations prevent financial crimes and potentially millions of lost dollars in penalties and fines worldwide. WorldCompliance is a leading provider of customer and vendor screening content used for Anti-Money Laundering (AML) and Governance Risk and Compliance (GRC) solutions. The WorldCompliance Politically Exposed Persons (PEPs) lists and Enhanced Due Diligence reports are the ideal complement to the LexisNexis AML solution, resulting in a leading suite of AML/compliance solutions in the market.

LexisNexis® Digital Library Enhancements

New features and capabilities have been added to the LexisNexis® Digital Library eLending solution to advance the digital library experience for legal professionals.

New features for LexisNexis Digital Library include:

- Enhanced design and readability—the new responsive design of LexisNexis Digital Library adapts to the screen size it is being accessed from to provide easier reading and navigation and a more consistent user experience regardless of whether it is accessed via a computer, mobile phone or tablet.
- OverDrive Read™ integration with syncing and more—LexisNexis Digital Library customers will have access to greater professional functionality via OverDrive Read. This browser-based e-reader allows users to access an eBook on any device without downloading or activating software. It also enables them to sync annotations, highlighted text and bookmarked pages across multiple devices. Each of these features is compatible with all major Web browsers including Internet Explorer®, Google Chrome™, Apple® Safari® and Mozilla® Firefox®.
- Access via EOS.Web®—LexisNexis Digital Library works with EOS.Web from library automation and knowledge management solutions provider EOS International. This helps librarians centrally manage both digital and print content, and users to search for and find titles in one location regardless of source.

- Law360® legal newsletters via RSS feed—LexisNexis Digital Library customers can see timely headlines from leading legal news service Law360® via RSS feed. Those with a subscription to Law360 can connect directly from the headlines to full coverage.
- One-step checkout—Saves users time and helps them get started faster by enabling users to borrow an eBook with one step.
