

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN LEXIS.COM® AND LEXIS ADVANCE®

Lexis Advance® looks different from lexis.com®, but your favorite lexis.com searching features are still available at Lexis Advance right where you expect them. And now you'll find more functionality and options so you can do more in less time, with fewer clicks.

Search broadly—or only specific sources. You get more flexible options with Lexis Advance.

lexis.com

Search specific source(s) with menu screens that let you:

- Browse screens and source lists, then select a title
- Click source checkboxes on several screens and combine to create custom groups

Lexis Advance

Search specific sources with the Explore Content hierarchy that lets you:

- Quickly and easily view, select and search an individual source or group sources
- Explore sources by Content Type, Federal or State Jurisdiction, or Practice Area
- Use Advanced Search forms tailored for your source to expedite your search

Search specific Federal or State sources, The Red Search Box lets you:

- Enter a partial source title; click the full title to add it to your search
- Repeat to add more sources

Make sure you don't miss a thing! Search broadly by:

- Searching multiple group sources like Federal & States Cases, Combined or MEGA™ News sources
- Conducting searches in each content type you might need

Return to recently used sources or favorites:

- Go to the Recently Used Sources box; click Edit sources; click checkboxes to keep favorites

Search the Web in one extra step. Exclusive Lexis® Web is available as a separate search.

Make sure you don't miss a thing! Search broadly faster. One Lexis Advance search can automatically cover all available content types. (Or refine your search to relevant jurisdictions, practice areas, content types and more.)

Return to recently used sources or favorites:

The Favorites pod is on your home page. Find recently used sources and legal topics there too. To keep a favorite, click the gold star in your results.

Search the Web automatically. Exclusive Lexis® Web is included in your search content automatically.

PLUS! Launch a search from almost any Lexis Advance page—just look for the Red Search Box at the top of your screen.

Try fill-in-the-blank search forms with more options at Lexis Advance.

lexis.com

Find Guided Search Forms as a subtab under Search. Navigate a Table of Contents to change forms.

Search some commonly used segments (document parts) available for that content type.

See the search on the results screen only.

Lexis Advance

Link to Advanced Search forms right from the Red Search Box. Navigate among forms easily; just link.

Search more available segments by content type. Also get one-click access to search command help and segment examples by document type.

It's interactive! As you add terms, the developing search is displayed on the form.

Retrieve full-text documents and Shepard's[®] reports even faster with Lexis Advance.

lexis.com

Several tools, several options:

- Enter a document citation in the Quick Tools box
- Select the Get a Document or Shepard's[®] tab and enter your citation
- Go to Get a Document subtabs to retrieve by party name or docket number

Lexis Advance

One Red Search Box, several options:

Start entering and automatically get suggestions for the documents you need. Enter a partial:

- Citation
- Case name
- popular U.S. and state statute name

Retrieve the full text—and get search references too. Enter shep: and the citation to Shepardize[®], e.g., ENTER: shep: 800 f2d 111.

Use favorite search commands at Lexis Advance—and more.

lexis.com

Select terms & connectors, natural language or Easy Search™ from your search box. Then enter the appropriate search type.

Use search commands and connectors such as * and ! plus OR, W/n or AND.

Use segments to search specific document parts when searching specific content types, e.g., writtenby(Scalia).

Link from search results to suggestions for additional search words to refine your query.

Lexis Advance

Type your search and go! Lexis Advance automatically identifies and processes your search as natural language or terms & connectors.

Use search commands connectors such as * and ! plus OR, W/n or AND. Here are some tips.

Use segments to search specific document parts when searching specific content types. See available segments by content type.

Get legal concept and phrase suggestions up-front as you enter terms in the Red Search Box. Save searching time!

Refine search results using even more options with Lexis Advance.

lexis.com

- Determine relevance; see search hits in results documents.
- FOCUS™ your search, i.e., add search words to refine.
- Change display sequence. Sort documents by relevance or a default setting.
- Edit your search to refine and search again.

Lexis Advance

- Determine relevance; see search hits in yellow highlighting for easy browsing. In case law results, the Case Overview also displays above the search hits.
- Filter your search, i.e., add search words to refine.
- Change display sequence. Sort documents by relevance, document title, date and other content options.
- Do more with one search. Use the left navigation bar—just click choices—to filter and refine results by jurisdiction, court or geography, practice area, key words and much more. Add/remove filters as needed.
- Spot periods of increased activity quickly. View a timeline chart of coverage for your search. Use it to narrow results to any period.

Learn more about Lexis Advance searching:

VISIT LEXISNEXIS.COM/ADVANCEYOURRESEARCH

At A Glance Quick Reference Guide

Show Me How Video Playlist

Terms & Connectors Literature

Lexis Advance Segments Literature

LexTalk® Community Tips

On-Demand Webinar

Step-by-Step Help

Online Tutorial