15 Find any available case by name. Just start typing in the Red Search Box. As you enter, you'll get case suggestions. Select yours and move to the full text.

16 Permalinks. That means you can create a link to any case you're viewing—in one step. Paste the link where you need it in your work product. Click and return as needed.

17 Search within your case. Any case you're viewing. Just click the Search Document button at the top of the screen and enter the words you want to find. Results words are highlighted. Move from term to term quickly.

18 Fill-in-the-blank form searching. Advanced Search forms for cases also let you search specific case parts. So, for example, you can find opinions written by a specific judge. Or restrict your case search to headnotes.

19 LexisNexis® headnotes. Written by professional attorney-editors using language directly from the case. Attorney-editors do not apply their editorial opinion when creating headnotes, which ensures no misrepresentation.

20 More unpublished cases. Get a comprehensive collection of unpublished cases at the state and federal level. Unpublished cases are retrieved with the court's permission.

Important BONUS! 29-step editorial process to ensure quality and timeliness. LexisNexis collects cases directly from 1,000 U.S. collection points. The editorial team works with the courts to correct and enhance cases, making over 500,000 corrections and enhancements to received cases. Editorial enhancements to cases are generally completed within 72 – 96 hours on average. LexisNexis has (overall) cases online faster than Westlaw over 78 percent of the time.[4] Only at Lexis Advance.
