

Board Report Says Execs Unaware of Breach

A report from the Equifax board of directors states that none of the four executives who traded shares of the company was aware of the breach, and the trades followed company policy. The board concluded no insider trading occurred.

Read congressional discussion on the potential for insider trading at Equifax:
LexisNexis Content Buttons & Links:

Congressional Discussion: Equifax
Data Breach & Insider Trading

Expert Analysis: Equifax Brings Early
Lessons On Insider Trading Policies

Recent Legal News:
Equifax Insider Trading

Equifax Says No Insider Trading

Equifax Inc. on Friday said that four senior executives, including its chief financial officer, who traded in company stock prior to the revelation of a data breach that left 145 million consumers' personal information exposed had no knowledge of the problem when they executed the trades. Equifax Says No Insider Trading Before Data Breach Revealed, Law360, November 3, 2017.