

One Last Look ... AALL Annual Meeting 2007

Before New Orleans fades into long-term memory, here's a sampling of photos from the 100th Annual Meeting of the American Association of Law Libraries. It was the LexisNexis® Librarian Relations Group's pleasure to exhibit pipeline products (and to get your feedback), to sponsor AALL scholarships and grants, and to meet, greet, converse and exchange ideas with their favorite librarian customers.

Didn't get a chance to attend? Hope you can next year. And, of course, your LexisNexis Librarian Relations Consultant and/or your LexisNexis account representative is available year-around to show you and your organization how to get the most value from LexisNexis® Total Practice Solutions. (If you're not sure how to contact your LexisNexis Librarian Relations Consultant, go to <http://www.lexisnexis.com/infopro/lrg>)

Enthusiastic information professionals wanted to know more about LexisNexis products—and win prizes in the process. Your colleagues saw more than 5,000 product demonstrations over the course of the three-day exhibition. Pictured above, LexisNexis Librarian Relations Consultant Dianne Chambers reviews the LexisNexis Librarian Relations program.

LexisNexis Librarian Relations Consultants present part of the LexisNexis® Cares' donation to the 2007 book drive, ReCovering New Orleans: One Book at a Time. LexisNexis Cares funded 122 books this year. Pictured (counterclockwise) Michael Saint-Onge, Gayle Lynn-Nelson, Bridget MacMillan, Liz Peoples, Rachel Schultz, Jenny Kanji and Dianne Chambers.

Information professionals had an opportunity to preview LexisNexis products from all four LexisNexis Solutions lines—Research, Client Development, Practice Management and Litigation Services. Each line was represented in a special section of LexisNexis Booth 321.

LexisNexis Librarian Relations Consultants Rhonda Keaton, Michael Saint-Onge, Dianne Chambers and Rachel Schultz agree: The best part of the annual meeting is the opportunity to share thoughts with librarian customers and colleagues.
