Which bundle is best for me?

InterAction training is offered at three skill levels, 100, 200 and 300, for three different primary roles, InterAction Administrators, Marketing Professionals and Data Stewards. The course that will best suit your needs will be determined by your previous experience with InterAction and the role you play within the database.

Three InterAction Essentials bundles are available for the three primary roles in a firm: Administrator 101, Marketing 101 and Data Steward 101. Each session is two half-days and is designed for students who are new to InterAction, or who want a refresher on best practices around basic IA functionality and processes.

For students who have experience with InterAction, three InterAction Explorer sessions are also available. Included in this half-day training, the 200 level series covers advanced topics and strategic maintenance considerations. A working knowledge of InterAction functionality is required for this series.

For students who want everything in one bundle, the InterAction Professional series offers the combination of the Essentials 101 and Explorer 201 sessions in a 2, 3 or 5 day* classroom environment at a LexisNexis training location. InterAction Certification testing is also included to Professional bundle registrants.

* See course bundles on reverse side for course length.

Am I required to take each session in a bundle?

The two courses in each bundle are designed to be taken as a pair, and class activities continue from one session to the next. If, however, you are only interested in the information covered in one class, you can register à la carte. A working knowledge of InterAction functionality is expected when registering for a single class.

A teammate wants to join me for class. Does each person need to register?

Yes, our policy is that each attendee must register for a seat in our classes. Included with registration, each student receives access to an individual training environment for hands-on scenarios and strategy activities. This is a live, interactive course led by a certified InterAction trainer. Classes are limited to twelve students to facilitate an open environment, encourage discussion and ensure that each attendee gets a complete tutorial.

If you have many training needs, consider Buy A Trainer or private class delivery as a more cost efficient training option.

When I register for all classes for my track, why are some classes missing?

If you wish to take the entire course in a certain track, click "Add Bundle to Cart." You will first notice that one or more classes may be missing from your schedule. This is due to the way LNU manages the registration. Once your method of payment is processed, usually between 24-48 hours, all classes in your track will appear on your "My Courses" page.

How will I connect to the class and find class materials?

A week before class, you will receive a direct email from your trainer that includes instructions for pre-work instructions, connection information and any materials you will need to have available. (Please add @lexisnexus.com to your safe contacts so the communications do not get caught in a spam folder). We encourage you to read the pre-work instructions and test your connection at least 24 hours before the start of class so we can troubleshoot any connection issues in advance.
