

Now It's Personal

"I want my own customized online legal research system. One that's easy to use ... lets me select the resources I want ... arrange them the way I want ... and search them all at once."

My Research.

You told us what you wanted. An easy-to-customize page to start your online research. With resources and tools you personally select and arrange. The ability to perform a single search across multiple content types. And tabbed results that correspond to the sources you specify in your search. That's My Lexis. And now it's yours.

My Way.

My Lexis™.

Search all your selected sources at once

From cases and codes to news, law reviews and analytical materials, our new Quick Search form enables you to select as many sources as you need and search them all—simultaneously. And you can easily narrow your searches for more relevant results right from the start.

View categorized results to find what you need faster

With My Lexis, even your research results appear the way you want. Your results correspond to the source categories you search against and are displayed on a single easy-to-read summary page and in exclusive tabbed source sets. So if you want to review treatise material first, you'll know exactly where to go. Recent cases next? News? It's all organized for you, making your results easier to access and use.

Customize your start page with drag-and-drop ease

Our new drag-and-drop feature allows you to select the resources you use most often and arrange them however you like on your start page. So you can access the resources you use most often quickly and easily, without the clutter of unwanted components.

What does all this mean for you? You save an incredible amount of time, and become more productive than ever. After all, only you know how you like to do research. Now you can do it your way ... with My Lexis.
