

The Credit Reporting Industry is About to Experience the Biggest Change in Decades... Are You Prepared?

When access to most lien & judgment data is cut off later this year, it won't be business as usual.

The clock is ticking: In July 2017, the three Nationwide Credit Reporting Agencies will eliminate about 50% of tax liens and most civil judgments from their credit reports as part of their National Consumer Assistance Plan. You have a lot to consider — especially since lien and judgment data has been a key piece of credit decisions for decades.

Our offering can help you retain your competitive edge without the added expense of recalibrating your models.

What does LexisNexis® RiskView™ Liens & Judgments Report offer?

Broad Coverage: The same nationwide coverage that has been included in credit reports historically

Actionable Details: You have the flexibility to specify the type of judgment and lien content that you want to receive, and to select from a variety of attributes and individual judgment and lien details

- Attributes include the count of liens on file, the count of judgments on file, and type, the dollar amount of tax liens, and more.
- Individual details for each lien and judgment on file will return the date filed, the amount, the case number, and more.

Flexible Delivery: Available via system to system XML integration and Batch data appends
