MANAGED TECHNOLOGY SERVICES FROM LEXISNEXIS

In any organization the network infrastructure is the central nervous system of the IT infrastructure. It allows access to critical applications, provides internet access and is the highway to all data sources. This is especially true in the legal vertical.

Design...Procure...Implement...
Monitor...Support

The complexity and intricacies involved in configuring and managing these wide area networks (WANs) require expertise in how the business runs currently, how it wants to run in the future and how that can be supported through the network infrastructure. This can be a daunting task without the right expert.

LexisNexis Managed Technology Services provides enterprise grade wide area network selection, implementation and management services to organizations wanting intelligently and proactively managed their network. We utilize industry leading technology to build a network that is specific to your needs now and that can adapt to where your business is going. LexisNexis Managed Technology Services delivers implementation and providing a predictable operating cost structure while eliminating the need for the firm to self-manage complex network performance.

LexisNexis Managed Technology Services has the right experts for your organization. We offer multiple solutions to cover your WAN needs, including system design, procurement, implementation, system monitoring and 24/7/365 support. If you already have the circuits and equipment in place, we can offer WAN Management as a Service to ensure your systems remain up and running with the highest available speeds possible. Time to upgrade your infrastructure but don't want a huge upfront capital expenditure? We offer WAN as a Service to provide the circuits, equipment, monitoring and support of your optimized WAN.
