

The nation's leading publisher of state primary-law titles is ...

LexisNexis! And as the official publisher, we can bring you this important benefit: For each title, we work with the prevailing authority to ensure that the legal materials you rely on are both authoritative and reliable.

Also note that:

- Our code sets contain annotations with important cases and references to our Matthew Bender® analytical resources (as well as collateral references to other publishers' material) to provide a comprehensive perspective. And further, our analytical resources are cited by the courts three times more often than those of any other publisher, making our integrated code a pivotal part of a superior library overall.
- LexisNexis publishes the United States Code Service and 39 state and territory codes in their entirety, along with explanatory notes and annotations written by attorney editors who work closely with federal and state authorities. Of the 22 states and territories that contract to have their official annotated codes published, 18 use LexisNexis as their publisher.
- Case citations are carefully selected to save you time weighing through duplicate references or a laundry list of annotations—only those citations of most significance are noted. Plus the case citations are Shepardized™.

More recent awards and contract extensions!

- The District of Columbia has awarded LexisNexis the contract to take over as publisher of the official District of Columbia Code beginning in 2013.
- The State of Florida has awarded LexisNexis the contract for the official Florida Administrative Code.
- The Georgia Supreme Court awarded LexisNexis the contract to publish the Official Georgia Reports.
- The Idaho Code Commission again awarded LexisNexis the contract to publish the official Idaho Code.
- The Mississippi Legislature has extended our contract to publish the official Mississippi Code of 1972 Annotated.
- The State of New Jersey again awarded LexisNexis the contract for The New Jersey Administrative Code and Register.
- The North Dakota legislature has awarded LexisNexis the contract to publish the official North Dakota Century Code for the next biennium. LexisNexis has served as Official Publisher of the Century Code since 1959.
- Puerto Rico renewed its contract with LexisNexis to be the official publisher of Laws of Puerto Rico Annotated.
