

DIFFERENCES THAT DELIVER GOOD LAW

Shepard's® Citation Service gives you every reason to be confident you're building your case on good law. Here's how:

Industry Leader

For more than 140 years, Shepard's has combined innovation with exceptional quality. By collecting and analyzing opinions as they become available from the courts, Shepard's Citations Service is continually updated as the law evolves. Cases arrive electronically from the courts every 15 minutes. Once a case is online, Shepard's analysis is added within 48 to 72 hours on average.

Authoritative Legal Analysis

Shepard's attorney-editors, who average 15 years of legal experience, carefully read and analyze each case for its impact on the law according to strict standards and guidelines. Editors map the history chain and also provide headnotes written in the language of the court to ensure a true reflection of court holdings. Plus, LexisNexis headnotes are categorized specifically for online research using a system designed to support newer topics and areas of law.

Full Range of Treatment

Only Shepard's offers a full range of editorial analysis—positive treatment like “followed by” as well as neutral treatment and negative analysis like “overruled” and “distinguished.” Shepard's reports can show vital instances where a court follows or explains your case on your point of law, possibly strengthening your argument and directing you to more supporting authority. Without “followed by” or “explained”, you could miss these supporting arguments. Plus, decisions rarely result in a single outcome. When one point of law is followed and another point overruled, i.e., a split of authority, only Shepard's shows you if your point is still good law.

Shepard's Signal™ Indicators

These indicators (e.g., the red stop sign) and treatment phrases (e.g., overruled) make it easy to see how your case is treated. Plus each citing case carries a signal indicator to show how courts have subsequently treated it.

Shepard's® Preview

Available only on Lexis Advance®, the Shepard's preview offers highlights of the full report when you are viewing a full-text case. You can see an overview of all subsequent treatment and link directly to citing references of interest even before you Shepardize®.

Shepard's® Report Filtering

One-click filter choices let you bring negative—or positive—treatment to the top of the report. Filter by headnote, jurisdiction, time frame or depth of discussion. When viewing a case, Shepard's lets you link to relevant case passages matched to the headnote you're following. When you filter by depth of discussion, you can move to citing cases that analyzed your case decision rather than just mentioning it.

Shepard's Alert®

Case law and statutes change, but you can easily stay in the know. Use the Shepard's Alert feature to receive prompt notifications online or via email. You can even request alerts on recently enacted or proposed legislation that may impact a statute of interest.

Visualization

Discover patterns in subsequent history you've never seen before. Shepard's® Citing Decisions Grid gives you a visual of vital history events so you can better determine if your point of law is still evolving. Also, uncover direct relationships between your case and others in the appellate history chain by viewing a graphical path from a major citing event to your case. Then you can focus on reading these cases to determine if the citing event impacted your case.
