Pratt's™ Government Contracting Law Report
Steven A. Meyerowitz, General Editor

KNOW WHAT'S REALLY GOING ON IN THE WORLD OF GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS

Pratt's™ Government Contracting Law Report tracks major disputes, industry trends and contract awards AND complements it with insight from respected industry experts.

This monthly resource provides updates, analysis and commentary on statutory and regulatory decisions, litigation and news that shape the future of government contracting and procurement. It lets you track the decisions that are most important to your work and filter the overwhelming number that are not. For those working for and with the federal government, it is indispensable.

Key features include:

- Administrative decisions including:
 - Comptroller General decisions
 - Civilian Board of Contract appeals
 - Armed Services Board of Contract appeals
- Case law
- Statutory and regulatory developments
- Dispute resolution
- Ethical obligations
- Compliance requirements

What's Inside

No other government contracting publication comes close to providing our expert analysis of 20+ decisions every month. Plus, you receive in-depth analytical and topical articles from leading attorneys and industry professionals:

- Authors have rich government backgrounds and are a credible resource for contractors and procurement professionals seeking to improve their advantage
- The Board of Editors, representing some of the country's most prestigious law firms, determines the overall scope and topic coverage, and the editors often contribute to the articles

Each publication includes regular columns, so you know precisely where to look for news and analysis on segments of interest: "Regulatory Update," "Legislative Update," "From the Courts" and "International Perspectives."

Pratt's Government Contracting Law Report is an essential component in a LexisNexis® resource portfolio tailored to the business and knowledge needs of government contractors.

About the Authors

Seamus Curley, partner at DLA Piper, litigates, counsels on, and negotiates government contract matters, including bid protests, size-related protests/appeals, commercial litigation and Contract Disputes Act claims. Seamus also handles pre-dispute matters. His counseling work focuses on unique contract terms and conditions, due diligence for mergers and acquisitions involving government contractor targets, domestic preference/country-of-origin, procurement fraud and business ethics/compliance programs.

Darwin A. Hindman III, chair, Government Contracts practice at Baker, Donelson, Bearman, Caldwell & Berkowitz, PC, concentrates on public contract law. He has obtained award reversals and re-bids, defended awards and has successfully assisted contractors with certified claims, Requests for Equitable Adjustments, ethical considerations, small and disadvantaged business issues, False Claims Act allegations, and the negotiation and enforcement of agreements. He is also an Adjunct Professor at Vanderbilt Law School, teaching Government Contracts.

J. Andrew Howard, partner in Construction & Government Contracts litigation group at Alston & Bird LLP, represents clients across a wide range of industries, including construction, healthcare, aerospace, energy and technology. Andy regularly advises companies on the FAR's unique procurement and contracting policies and procedures, on compliance with and in negotiation of government contracts, subcontracts, joint venture, teaming and SBA-approved mentor-protégé agreements, and on the standards for the protection of classified information under NISPOM.

Kyle R. Jefcoat, counsel at Latham & Watkins, advises clients on government contract compliance issues, including mandatory disclosure and code of business ethics, organizational conflicts of interest, small business size-status and affiliation, Freedom of Information Act responses and requests, mergers and acquisitions, including novations, requirements for cost or pricing data, the suspension and debarment process and potential False Claims Act liability. He drafts agreements focusing on flow-down requirements and IP protections.

John E. Jensen, leader of the Government Contracts & Disputes practice at Pillsbury, represents clients in bid protests, in government audits and investigations, in defending against government claims, and in matters of suspension and debarment. He advises on the government contracts aspects of M&A activity, including due diligence. Prior to joining Pillsbury in 1990, Mr. Jensen was a government contracts lawyer for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and worked in the Government Contracts Program at George Washington University Law School.

Dismas (Diz) Locaria, partner, Venable and vice chair of the ABA's Section of Public Contract Law Committee on Debarment and Suspension, has a wealth of government contract and grant knowledge, including the application of the Federal Acquisition Regulation, OMB Circular A-110 and A-122 and other regulations. He assists organizations with meeting the requirements for becoming a federal contractor or grantee, interpreting the implication of regulatory, contract and grant terms to clients' work and operations and evaluating intellectual property issues.

Marcia G. Madsen, leader, Government Contracting Practice Group at Mayer Brown, advises clients on contract negotiation and formation, teaming and strategic alliances, performance disputes, audits, terminations, cost accounting and allowability, technical data rights and trade secrets. Her areas of concentration include aerospace and defense, systems integration, information systems and telecommunications, healthcare and biotechnology, homeland security, environmental remediation, and research and development.

Vincent J. Napoleon, partner, Nixon Peabody LLP, served as general counsel of major divisions of Fortune 100 companies for more than 25 years. He is a retired Air Force Colonel and senior member of the staff of the Air Force's Deputy Assistant Secretary for Contracting. He was Senior Contracting Official for the Air Force District of Washington.

Stuart W. Turner, counsel, Arnold & Porter LLP's Government Contracts Group and vice chair of the ABA's Section of Public Contract Law: Acquisition Reform & Emerging Issues Subcommittee, has advised clients on multiple aspects of government contracting, including compliance matters, False Claims Act and other investigations, and FOIA. He has trained contractors and grant recipients in evolving compliance requirements and helped these entities draft and implement compliant internal policies and address internal audits and investigations.

Walter A.I. Wilson, senior partner and chair, Government Contracts practice at Polsinelli, has 40 years of procurement law and litigation experience. He is general editor of the Matthew Bender® 13-volume treatise Government Contracts. It provides the procurement community with up-to-date information on the Federal Acquisition Regulations and all aspects of the federal procurement process. He previously served as a trial lawyer with the U.S. Army's Judge Advocate General's Corps and as an attorney with the federal Renegotiation Board.
