

Premier Federal Agency Materials now at Lexis Advance®

When you need the deepest insights into U.S. agency policies ...

Sometimes you need federal agency guidance that doesn't make the Federal Register. Maybe it's hard-to-locate commissioners' statements. Or maybe it's agency press releases from 2012. Unfortunately the agency's website doesn't archive longer than 12 months. It could take hours to find what you need—even if you know what you're looking for.

Now you have another option. You can get more of the federal agency materials you require, and get them fast. Stay up to date on federal agency decisions, policies, news and trends by subscribing to one of the most comprehensive and timely collections of federal agency content available in one place ... via Lexis Advance®. You won't find this extensive coverage through lexis.com®.

Discover 1.5 million+ additional documents— and more coming

Your current Lexis Advance subscription collection of primary agency content includes more than one million documents. Premier Federal Agency Materials can give you up to 1.5 million additional documents—more than 2.5 million total. Plus an additional one million documents will be added throughout 2014.

Get strong guidance from internal agency work product

Premier documents include press releases, speeches, testimonies, working papers, guidelines, interpretations and agency newsletters, just the type of informative direction you can use when developing or monitoring compliance strategy, or assessing the best move for litigation.

Practitioners, especially those doing business in highly regulated industries, such as Financial Services, Energy, High Tech, Life Sciences, Manufacturing, etc., can also gain new insights into agency policy positions, stay updated and watch for changes, and better prepare for implementation challenges. Plus, documents are issued directly from the agencies, so you don't have to wait for a news reporting service to pick it up.

For current awareness and litigation, you can monitor:

- Commissioner statements not reported in the Federal Register
- Guidance pamphlets for evolving positions in order to advise clients or stakeholders
- Major legal developments along key industries and practice areas
- New litigation events for competitors, suppliers, customers and your own or your clients' company

For due diligence and compliance, you can:

- Gain access directly to guidance documents from federal agencies that were previously difficult to locate
- Conduct third-party due diligence (export control, FCPA and UK Bribery Act)
- Extract sample policies, procedures, checklists and forms from published agency materials not previously available

Lexis Advance offers what free agency websites don't ...

More efficient, comprehensive research. Save vital time and get better insights.

Permanent archives: Many agencies do not store or index website content for more than a year. Many posts are removed quickly.

Regularly updated—on schedule: These Lexis Advance materials will be updated on a weekly basis—great when you need to stay updated on agency activity. Even request LexisNexis Alerts on a topic of interest.

One resource; one search: You do not have to “click through” an agency site, examine multiple data sets or document lists, just to find the right information.

Full-text search options: Most agencies don't offer full-text searching. With Lexis Advance you can search for the words you want to find—in natural language or with search commands—and further filter your results to quickly home in on the right documents.

Manage, store and access on demand: On Lexis Advance, you can save documents to online folders, make notations, share with colleagues, email—in general, easily gain access when you want and use as you need.
