Key Legal Trends Shaping Illinois in 2025

This year, Illinois is setting the pace for bold legal change. From workplace reform to AI regulation and tenant protections, here are the trends every legal professional should be watching:

Consumer and Patient Advocacy

Illinois has banned short-term health insurance plans often criticized as “junk insurance,” capped epinephrine injector costs at $60, and expanded hearing aid coverage to include all ages.

Regulating AI and Digital Identity

The state has outlawed AI-generated child exploitation content and the unauthorized commercial use of a person’s image or voice. Digital driver’s licenses are also now available, marking a new chapter in legal identification.

Housing Justice Moves Forward

New protections prevent landlord retaliation against tenants who report code violations and require disclosure of flooding history and floodplain status in rental properties.

Public Safety and Criminal Reform

From stricter enforcement of firearm removal under Karina’s Law to new rules combating catalytic converter theft, Illinois is prioritizing safer communities.

Subscription Transparency

A new consumer protection law requires businesses to notify customers before automatically renewing trial-based subscriptions, helping prevent surprise charges.

Workplace Transparency and Protections

New laws require employers to include salary ranges in job postings, protect workers with family responsibilities and prohibit mandatory political or religious meetings—strengthening autonomy and fairness in the workplace.

Trust LexisNexis® to Stay Ahead

Current legal challenges are reshaping Illinois, impacting businesses, legal professionals and residents alike. Staying ahead of these developments is essential for navigating the evolving regulatory landscape and ensuring compliance in 2025 and beyond.
