Key Legal Trends Shaping the Mid-Atlantic in 2025

AI & Digital Content Regulation

Governments are taking a closer look at artificial intelligence, enacting laws to combat misinformation, deepfakes, and deceptive AI-generated media. Expect tighter oversight on digital content and emerging technologies.

Civil Rights & Social Equity

States are addressing historical injustices through reparations studies, expanded anti-discrimination protections, and new initiatives to promote racial and economic equity. These efforts aim to shape long-term policy changes.

Data Privacy & Consumer Protection

States are strengthening data privacy laws, increasing regulations on businesses that collect and store consumer information. Companies must adapt to stricter compliance requirements to avoid penalties.

Employee Benefits & Retirement Security

More states are introducing state-sponsored retirement savings programs, requiring employers to facilitate access for workers who lack employer-provided plans. This trend aims to address long-term financial security.

Family & Child Welfare

Adjustments to child protection laws, including broader safe-haven policies and parental rights legislation, are shaping the legal landscape around family welfare and child custody issues.

Healthcare Access & Affordability

Laws expanding insurance coverage for essential medical services, including cancer screenings and mental health treatment, are improving patient access to care. Medicaid and employer-sponsored plans are adjusting to new mandates.

Insurance & Liability Reform

Changes to auto and healthcare insurance requirements are increasing coverage minimums, affecting both consumers and businesses. These reforms seek to balance consumer protections with industry stability.

Public Safety & First Responders

Expanded workers' compensation benefits for first responders, particularly for PTSD and mental health conditions, highlight a growing recognition of the risks faced by emergency personnel.

Workplace & Wage Laws

Minimum wage increases, and new worker protections are rolling out, impacting employer obligations and payroll costs. These changes reflect ongoing efforts to address cost-of-living concerns and labor rights.

Trust LexisNexis® to Stay Ahead

These legal challenges are reshaping the Mid-Atlantic region, impacting businesses, legal professionals and residents alike. Staying ahead of these developments is essential for navigating the evolving regulatory landscape and ensuring compliance in 2025 and beyond.

Corbin on Pennsylvania Contracts

Timothy Murray, Jon Hogue

Expanding on the influence of the Corbin brand, Corbin on Pennsylvania Contracts is a unique explanation of the law of contracts in Pennsylvania. Did you know these contract tenets are specific to Pennsylvania?

- Pennsylvania is the only state to enact the Uniform Written Obligations Act, a substitute for consideration, but still requires a bargained-for exchange with restrictive covenants.
- Pennsylvania refuses to consider most evidence of fraud to invalidate a contract.
- Pennsylvania is in the minority in regarding the “lost volume seller” rule and other key contract rules.
- Pennsylvania adheres to a strict “four corners” approach to contract interpretation and construction.
- Pennsylvania applies the law in the face of disagreement among courts regarding recovery of consumer credit card debt.
