Added Document Flexibility

Validate points of law faster with Shepard's Signal™ indicators on LexisNexis® headnotes

Uncover the Shepard's® treatment for a specific issue without leaving your full-text case. Now you'll see Shepard's Signal™ indicators with LexisNexis® headnotes—positive and negative treatment—as well as the number of citing references for each.

Select a Shepard's Signal and move directly to your Shepard's report, filtered by that headnote/issue and editorial treatment. Shepard's Signal indicators on headnotes are available only through the Lexis Advance® service.

Select multiple documents in a TOC for search or delivery—with one click

It's fast and simple to choose specific portions of a Table of Contents (TOC) source to search or deliver. Just click a checkbox to select an entire portion, e.g., a chapter of a treatise or part of a code—or click more than one checkbox. Then search or deliver all the selected documents. Use the Search Selected checkbox to toggle between searching selected documents and the entire TOC.

More Search Power

Lexis Answers™ feature offers statutes of limitations coverage for state jurisdictions

Now the Lexis Answers™ feature at the Lexis Advance service covers statutes of limitations questions for state jurisdictions as well as federal. For example, enter statute of limitations for armed robbery in Ohio, and your Answer Card and search results will point you to Ohio case law.

Easier Results Review

Why did your case get its Shepard's Signal™? Find out in more full-text cases

See the citing reference that had the greatest influence on the Shepard's treatment for your case. Now the Reason for Shepard's Signal™ feature is available in full-text cases prior to 2003 as well as more current cases.

More Must-Have Content
