From within Practical Guidance, you can select a relevant practice area. The list of Practical Guidance modules within your subscription will appear at the top of the list.

Practical Guidance arranges content by topic and subtopic. The subtopic tree is contained in the 'Browse topics' section. Select a blue hyperlink to view the content relevant to that topic or subtopic.

In a subtopic, you can see the collection of all different types of resources including Overview, Guidance notes, key Cases, Legislation, applicable Forms and Precedents.

Guidance notes are written exclusively for the Practical Guidance platform by practising subject matter experts. They comprehensively cover the key steps and concepts related to a task, matter or issue, and link out to the primary materials needed to support implementation. Guidance notes also provide links to additional resources from the Lexis Advance Research library that may be relevant.

The Practical Guidance Practice area homepage also features a collection of pods which contain useful resources including Tools, Checklists and Precedents.

Toolkits contain practical materials such as frequent tasks, comparative tables, workflow diagrams, glossaries, calculators and decision support tools.

Checklists, available directly from the homepage and throughout the guidance, assist with guiding you through key tasks, matters or issues relevant to a practice area.

Precedents can be accessed by subtopic, or in the Precedents pod on the module homepage. You can save precedents in a working folder on Lexis Advance or download the document in Microsoft Word.
